Lower Witherspoon Street To Retain Business Zoning

Calling it the most difficult issue he has had to grapple with in his five-plus years on Township Committee, Thomas Poole voted against changing the zoning on lower Witherspoon Street from straight commercial (B-1) to mixed use (B/R, business/residential).

Leonard Godfrey also voted against the proposed change and so did Richard Woodbridge. That left only Mayor Kate Litvack and Deputy Mayor Phyllis Marchand, both Planning Board members, supporting the Planning Board's recommendation. Four affirmative votes were required to adopt the ordinance because of a challenge by 20 percent of the affected property owners.

The Valley Road building was packed on Monday night, as the ordinance recommended by the Planning Board was given a public hearing before being put to the vote. Property owners, lawyers for affected businesses, and interested residents from as far away as North Harrison Street and Clover Lane stayed to hear the vote, which came at 11:30. A court stenographer, an indication that legal action might be forthcoming, dutifully recorded three and one half hours of public comment.

The ordinance represented a departure from the Planning Board's recommendation in the 1989 Master Plan that lower Witherspoon be rezoned residential in order to retain the existing scale of streetscape and to preserve the dwindling supply of affordable housing stock in the community. After listening to protests by residential and business property owners at the Planning Board Master Plan hearings, the Board attempted a compromise which would allow some conversion of existing residences to business use but limit them to the ground floor.

According to a tally kept by Mr. Woodbridge, 23 people spoke during the public hearing. Fourteen spoke against the ordinance, and of the remaining nine, three were speaking for the Planning Board. Several of the six who might be counted as being in favor used the occasion to vent their views on parking and traffic on Witherspoon Street. They targeted the hospital rather than commercial businesses as the primary generator of these problems.

Mr. Poole said there were good arguments and bad arguments on both sides, good points and bad points in both the existing zoning regulations and those that were being proposed. He said

Years of Effort, Rocketload of Hopes to Ride the Shuttle As Hubble Space Telescope Is Launched Next Thursday

"It is really going to be like Christmas morning!"
Tod Lauer

Astronomers throughout the world are hoping for some wonderful surprises following the launch, scheduled for April 10, of the Edwin P. Hubble Space Telescope. Seven from Princeton, accompanied by wives, children, grandchildren and assorted friends, will travel to NASA's Cape Canaveral launch site to watch from the causeway as the shuttle Discovery carries history's biggest scientific experiment into orbit.

For Lyman Spitzer, Jr. the event may be more like the birth of a child — "after the longest gestation period in history," remarks the "father of the Space Telescope," as his colleagues call him. The Senior Research Astronomer and Charles A. Young Professor of Astronomy, emeritus at Princeton University, first conceived the idea in 1945, in an appendix to a Rand Corporation report for the United States Air Force.

The subject: possible uses of a big satellite for astronomy. "I was always a science fiction fan and the success of Germany in building larger and larger rockets had led me to wonder what could be done with them. The war ended while I was writing the paper, and I was convinced that an orbiting telescope was a very fine objective."

Dr. Spitzer spent the next 10 to 15 years promoting the idea among astronomers and after that to NASA and then to Congress. Congress proved the most difficult hurdle, although some ground-based astronomers took some persuasion to rally to the cause. Dr. Spitzer, experienced in dealing with Capitol Hill, was joined in his lobbying efforts by an invaluable ally — and born lobbyist — Dr. John Bahcall, now Professor of Astrophysics at Princeton's Institute for Advanced Study. The most intensive efforts came in the mid-1970's, after Congress had failed to fund the telescope. The two men rallied the astronomy community to write, call and visit their representatives, traveling to Washington themselves many times. Astronomers appeared out of the woodwork —

Failed Robbery Attempt At Palmer Square Kiosk

An attempted armed robbery Monday afternoon at the Kiosk newspaper and magazine stand on Palmer Square failed.

Lt. Peter Hanley reported that the suspect entered and pointed a handgun at the lone female clerk and demanded money. However, when a customer entered, he fled north on Palmer Square toward the Nassau Inn.

The robbery suspect is described as a balding white male in his 40s, 6-0 to 6-1, with a medium build.

Emily Stuart Murder Remains a Mystery; Reward Is Doubled

It's been a year since Emily C. Stuart was found stabbed to death in the basement of her 34 Mercer Street home, and the murder remains unsolved.

In the media world this instinctively calls for a story, recounting the facts surrounding the tragedy and an update on what has happened since then. It's a story with a lot of old information, and just one piece of new.

The Stuart family has doubled the amount of the reward from $25,000 to $50,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible. A statement released by the family Tuesday says:

"It has been a difficult and painful year for the family of Cissy Stuart. We are still working to put her tragic death behind us.

"Perhaps the most difficult thing to accept is that the person responsible for this senseless and violent act may never be apprehended. The Princeton Borough Police and Mercer County Prosecutor's Office have worked unceasingly trying to develop leads in the case, but so far it has been slow going.

"To this end, the family has decided to augment its efforts in one of the few ways it can. Effective immediately, the $25,000 reward offered a year ago has been doubled to $50,000. This serves not only to re-emphasize the reward, but the larger amount may just possibly encourage someone to contact the police."

Given the circumstances surrounding the murder, some kind of tip to police may be the only hope.

On the date of her death, Sunday, April 2, Mrs. Stuart had enjoyed a day typical of many in her active life. She went to the 8 a.m. service at Trinity Church, right across Mercer Street, with her sister, Margaretta Cowenhoven, and then enjoyed a Bloody Mary cocktail with a friend.

After the friend left, she changed into work clothes and went out in the back yard to rake leaves from her garden. At some point Sunday afternoon — police place the time between approximately 3 and 6 p.m. — she was accosted by her assailant, who may have walked down her driveway from Mercer or from a back alley that connected with Alexander.

It can not be said with certainty whether the confrontation took place in the yard, the house or the tiny basement room where her body was found. Access to the basement could have been gained from the outside through a walkway underneath the back porch. When gardening, Mrs. Stuart often used this walkway to and from the basement where she kept garden tools and supplies.

What is certain is that the murderer was able to walk onto the property during the daylight hours, stab Mrs. Stuart to death, and walk away unnoticed in a neighborhood where the houses are just a few feet apart.

The motive, if any, is unclear. Nothing was taken from the house, and its contents were undisturbed.

Mrs. Stuart's body was not found until Tuesday morning by a relative. An intensive police investigation began at that point, and is still very active.

If It Can Be Solved, We're The Ones

Do you think the case will ever be solved?

Chief Michael Carnevale was asked that, after announcing at a press conference Tuesday that the Stuart family has doubled the amount of the reward being offered for information leading to the apprehension of the person who stabbed Emily Stuart to death last April 2. It is a question that many Princetonians have asked.

"I don't have a crystal ball," Chief Carnevale replied, "but I am positive if this case is solvable, we're the ones who can do it." Would he ever consider terminating the investigation? "We never close a case. It's actively ongoing even after a full year," Chief Carnevale stated. He reported that Det. Ralph Terracciano, who has worked on the case full time since the day of the murder, was, at the moment, out of the State, working on the investigation. Continued Chief Carnevale, "As long as it is an ongoing investigation, we're making progress. It is not at a standstill. There is always a glimmer of enthusiasm and hope that we may have some positive results."

At the same time, Chief Carenvale conceded that the investigation into Mrs. Stuart's murder is not proceeding as well as the police department would have liked. "I would have been pleased to be able to annouce today that we have solved the Stuart murder," he said.

Chief Carnevale also conceded that the reward offer "has not provided the kinds of leads we would have hoped it would." It is difficult, he commented, because there is no strong motive.

"What we have is indeed a murder mystery which we are attempting to solve. We continue to persist. We're not giving up. We have no intention of doing that."

He was wearing a red and white jacket, red sweat pants, a white, brimless hat and dark-rimmed sunglasses. Lt. Hanley said the suspect was seen by several other witnesses as he fled.

The attempted robbery occurred a few minutes after 3, just as police squads were changing shifts. As a result, there were more than the normal contingent of patrolmen at headquarters and 15 Borough officers, aided by Township police, converged on the scene. Police combed the area for as long as an hour searching for the suspect without success.

The clerk is reported to have commented that she tried to comply with the suspect's request for money but the cash register door jammed when she pushed the wrong button. "We know the drawer never opened," Lt. Hanley said.

The attempted armed robbery was the first such incident in the Borough in more than three years. The last armed attempt occurred December 12, 1986, at a Nassau Street service station. "We've had other robberies since then involving strong arm, but that was the last robbery with a gun," Lt. Hanley said.

Four Area Municipalities Discuss Results Of a Jointly-Commissioned Traffic Study

The conclusions reached in a recent traffic study funded by four neighboring municipalities were not news. Everyone knows traffic is bad, and everyone knows which roads are worst and at what times.

Nor were the consultant's recommendations new. The New Jersey Department of Transportation pointed out the need for improvements to Route 1 in its Route 1 Corridor Study of the mid-1980s. The DOT also said at the time that parallel service roads east and west of Route 1 would be needed as well as improvements to local roads. Some of these recommendations in terms of extending or realigning existing roads have been on State, county and municipal master plans for years.

What is new is that four neighboring municipalities got together last year to commission the study, which was the first "origin and destination" survey taken at key intersections in an overlapping area since sometime in the 1970s. In addition, the mayors and other officials of the four municipalities have been meeting together to discuss traffic. The four municipalities are the two Princetons, Montgomery Township and the Rocky Hill Borough.

Two public meetings have been held — both in Princeton Township's Valley Road building, with Mayor Kate Litvack as host. The first was in February, to describe the scope and results of the study; the second in March to discuss potential roadway alignments to implement the recommendations for improvements.

Because none of the proposed improvements are entirely located within any of the four municipalities, it was agreed at the March meeting that the dialogue should be expanded to include the affected surrounding townships. Despite the urging of Kenneth Barnhart of Citizens for Appropriate Roadway Systems (CARS), a Montgomery citizens organization, to set the next date so the momentum would continue, no date was set. Mayor Litvack said she thought some preliminary phone calls with the other municipalities would be desirable before a date was set.

Congestion Sources

The study was prepared by Abbington-Ney Associates of Freehold. It was designed to "quantify" major sources of traffic congestion within the borders of the four municipalities and in the surrounding region. The study consisted of interview and postcard surveys conducted between 7 and 9 on five mid-week mornings last June at intersections on Route 206, Route 27, Route 518, Cherry Valley Road and Harrison Street within the study area.

The data collected was categorized into major travel patterns or "desire lines." A desire line represents a vehicle trip from the point of origin to the point of destination without consideration of roadways available to undertake that trip.

The study showed that:

- eight percent of the trips had origins within the study area and destinations outside the study area;
- 12 percent of the trips had both origins and destinations within the study area;
- 25 percent of the trips were found to have both origins and destinations outside the study area;

TOPICS
Of the Town

- the remaining 55 percent were found to have origins outside the study area, with 44 percent wanting to go to Princeton, nine percent to Montgomery and two percent to Rocky Hill.

For the eight percent of trips originating within the study area, the major destination points were — in order of intensity — to Plainsboro/New Brunswick; Trenton/Ewing/Lawrence; New Brunswick/Somerset; and East and West Windsor.

For the 55 percent of trips which come into the study area, the majority of trips were found to originate in the greater Trenton area, followed by the South Brunswick area, then East and West Windsor.

For the 25 percent having neither origin nor destination within the study area, the primary desire line pattern was between the greater Trenton area and Plainsboro/South Brunswick and from Trenton and New Brunswick/Somerset. A strong east/west desire line from the Pennsylvania area to Plainsboro and the Brunswicks was observed, as well as north/south orientations between Trenton/Ewing/Lawrence and Somerville/Bridgewater.

These desire lines led the consultants to the conclusion that "consideration for future highway design should focus on:

- an improved Route 1, and/or service roads parallel to Route 1 to service trips between Pennsylvania/Trenton and Plainsboro/the Brunswicks; also, improvements to intersections along Route 1, and improvements to roadways connecting the study area with Route 1 will be needed to accommodate flows into and out of the study area.
- creation of a western bypass to accommodate the draw between Pennsylvania/Trenton and Bridgewater/Somerville, as well as the north/south travel patterns
- an eastern bypass for trips between northern New Jersey and South Brunswick/Plainsboro, and to provide a connection to the New Brunswick and Somerset area."

'Capillary' System Needed

The consultant also says that in addition to providing alternate means for external to external trips to travel through the study area and improve traffic flows on Route 206 and Route 27, the improvements or new roadways to service the desire lines must also provide a "capillary" system for getting traffic into and out of the study area.

The consultant suggests concentrating on "small doable" projects for the individual communities as well as groups of communities. "Regional projects should be organized by several municipalities and coordinated with the counties. Improvements which may require participation by the New Jersey Department of Transportation can be approached with the support of municipal and country governments," the report concludes.

At the March meeting, Henry Ney of Abbington Ney Associates had prepared an addendum outlining some potential roadway alignments to implement these recommendations. It was pointed out that Route 1 is experiencing capacity constraints and would continue to do so well into the next century, even with the replacement of traffic lights with overpasses and with the widening of the highway to four lanes, which the consultant recommends in Middlesex and Mercer counties.

A parallel service road west of Route 1 could be created by extending Canal Pointe Boulevard in West Windsor north to Washington Road and south to Quaker Bridge Road and southeastward to the intersection at the Motor Vehicle inspection station. This alignment is part of the Mercer County master plan.

Parallel Service Road

A parallel service road east of Route 1 could be created by realigning Clarksville Road in West Windsor to intersect opposite Bear Brook Road, realigning Bear Brook to connect with Vaughn Drive; extending Vaughn northward to intersect with Washington Road, and continuing north to intersect with Route 1 at Harrison Street. This too is shown on the Mercer County Master Plan.

In terms of east and west bypass roadways, the consultants reviewed existing State and county master plans. The State master plan for a bypass consists of U.S. Route 92 between Route 130 and Route 206, and the Somerset Expressway between Interstate-287 and Route 206.

The County master plan roadways of particular interest to Princeton residents include:

- providing connections of existing roadway links to establish West County Drive between Route 22 and Route 31/202, and from Route 31/202 to The Great Road in Montgomery Township;
- reconstructing and realigning Route 522 between Route 27 and Route 130 in South Brunswick, part of which has already been undertaken by a developer;
- constructing the Hopewell bypass;
- constructing the Pennington bypass;
- extending Province Line Road southward to Canal Pointe Boulevard and a connection to Route 1;
- extending Rosedale Road westward to ultimately connect to Route 31.

In addition to these improvements, which are already on Somerset, Middlesex and Mercer county master plans, Ahhington-Ney recommends some additional construction to create a western and eastern hypass system. For the western hypass, the consultants suggest:

Minimum Wage Increase

The State Assembly has approved a measure to raise the State minimum wage to $5.05 an hour by 1992. The bill, which will now go to the State Senate for consideration, would immediately raise the current pay level from $3.35 to $3.80 an hour.

The $3.80 hourly rate would conform with the federal minimum wage that went into effect Sunday. Only federal workers and those working in interstate commerce are eligible for the $3.80 federal rate until the New Jersey rate becomes law.

Proposed increases would raise the minimum wage twice more: to $4.25 by April, 1991, and to $5.05 by April, 1992.

Tighter Controls on Solid Waste Dumps

A measure to give the State greater power to close solid waste dumps that are able to ignore strict environmental guidelines by posing as recycling centers was passed by the State Assembly.

The bill, which will now be sent to the Senate, is in reaction to an August 7, 1989, fire at the Hub Recycling and Scrap Metal site in Newark, a six-acre dump that posed as a recycling center. The fire damaged steel beams beneath Interstate 78, causing part of the roadway to be closed. Repairs took four months and cost $13 million.

Senate Approves "Right-to-Die" Bills

The State Senate narrowly approved two measures aimed at protecting a terminally ill person's right to die. The vote came amid protests that the measures would legalize euthanasia.

One bill recognizes the validity of "living wills," documents in which people state in advance whether they wish to stay on respirators or artificial feeding systems should they become terminally ill and incapacitated.

This measure will now go to the State Senate, along with the Assembly-approved bill expanding the grounds on which authorities may declare someone dead. In addition to standard observations on heart and breathing functions, a person could be declared legally dead if all brain functions had ceased.

• constructing a new roadway following the old Reading Railroad right-of-way between Route 206 and Province Line Road in Montgomery Township (the old I-95 alignment which was abandoned in 1982), continuing it to Carter Road southward to Route 206, or following Province Line southward to the proposed extension of Canal Pointe Boulevard, which will ultimately intersect Route 1;

• improving Pennington-Rocky Hill Road from Province Line Road southwestward to tie into the Pennington bypass, which provides access to Route 31 and I-95/295.

Millstone Crossing

With respect to an eastern bypass, the Abhington-Ney study points out that a new crossing of the Millstone River will be required in addition to using NJDOT's proposed S-92 alignment, which representatives of the four municipalities agree should be downgraded from a four-lane highway to a two-lane collector road.

It was noted that there is local opposition to some of these recommendations. The Pennington bypass, for instance is opposed by Pennington residents because it would encroach on a particularly nice wooded area. Princeton residents living on Elm Road and The Great Road attended the March meeting because of their concern that the western bypass would funnel traffic down their street.

Two residents of Princeton Community Village spoke out in strongest terms against extending Bunn Drive, saying that to do so would pose grave dangers for the children of that housing development trying to cross the street to Hilltop Park.

However this is a Princeton Township issue. The purpose of the four municipalities getting together and commissioning a joint study was to gather data that "will be a significant addition to recent studies by counties and other municipalities, and that further cooperative efforts will result in improved transportation planning.

Gay Graduate Student Assigned an Apartment

Michael Costa, the Princeton University graduate student who requested "family" housing for next year for himself and his male companion, a Princeton High School teacher, will put his name in the regular draw for "alternate" housing, according to University spokeswoman Jacquelyn Savani.

According to Ms. Savani, the University has two types of housing for graduate students: single rooms for single individuals at the Graduate College, and family housing in which married couples, single parents with children and even students with a dependent parent live in the Butler tract and Lawrence apartments. In all these family arrangements, the key word is "dependent," she says, as defined under State law.

Mr. Costa sought "family" housing, but in a meeting last week it was agreed that he will have "alternate" housing at a location Ms. Savani declines to disclose to protect his privacy. She says this will be an apartment, not a single room. "The point is that the University has every intention to honor its commitment to its policy of non-discrimination toward homosexuals," Ms. Savani asserted.

She said the issue is not closed, because "there are other matters to be worked through."

Although the University offers more housing to its graduate students than do most universities — 70 or 80 percent of graduate students are accommodated in University housing at Princeton, whereas at M.I.T., which offers "married" housing, the percentage is something like 20 percent, she said — the housing stock is limited and the competition for it is keen.

There is a point system which gives second year students more points than first year. The University uses the housing to recruit and attract graduate students, she said. "It's a promise we make in our literature."

If the University were to open up the category of "family" housing to all who claim a committed relationship with a "significant other," there would be more requests than it could practically handle.

There are other problems as well. The University asks that all dependents have health insurance and is able to offer policies through its health insurance arrangements for the University community as a whole. But Mr. Costa's partner could not be insured because he doesn't fall under the definition of a dependent.

Ms. Savani says this and other issues would be taken up by the Campus Life Committee, chaired by Thomas H. Wright Jr., University vice president, general counsel and secretary. The matter of homosexual housing and the issues it raises is also on the agenda for the president's Cabinet, Ms. Savani says. In addition, Carl Wartenburg, special assistant to the president, has been spending time on the issue as is Joy Montero, assistant dean of the Graduate College.

Meanwhile, at Princeton High School, students took in stride the revelation that Carlos Barrera, a tutor to Spanish-speaking students in English and math, is gay. Mr. Barrera is a native of Mexico who moved from San Francisco last summer to be with Mr. Costa.

After Mr. Costa disclosed in public what he perceived to be discrimination against the couple in not permitting them to live in family housing, Mr. Barrera said he was nervous as to how his students would take the news. After meeting with students and some staff members, he said he was proud of the students "because they realized that this was part of my private life and had nothing to do with my role at school."

High School principal John Sakala said that although there was initially some reaction within the school, he had not received calls from upset parents.

Township Spring Clean-Up Set

The municipal spring clean-up in the Township will begin on Monday, April 23, and continue until every street has been covered once. The Department of Public Works expects this to take 15 days.

The Township will be divided into three geographic areas, each with a separate pickup schedule. Area I, the northeast Township, bounded by Route 206 to the west and the Borough line and Route 27 to the south, will be picked up the week of April 23.

Area II, the southeast, bounded by Alexander Road to the west and the Borough line and Route 27 to the north, will be picked up the week of April 30. Area III, the western Township, bounded by Route 206, the Borough line and Alexander Road to the east, will be picked up the week of May 7.

Materials to be picked up must be put out ready for collection before 8 a.m. on Monday of the collection week designated for each area. Householders are asked not to put anything out more than one week before this date. No materials will be picked up after Friday of the week designated for each area.

Garden and yard debris such as tree branches, twigs, leaves, lawn debris and grass clippings will be picked up. Household items such as furniture and appliances and rimless tires will also be picked up at this time.

Yard items such as leaves, grass rakings and other biodegradable yard debris should be raked or placed at the edge of the road for pickup by the Township's "Mechanical Claw." These items should not be bagged as required in previous years.

Tree branches, brush and twigs must be securely tied in bundles not more than 12 inches in diameter and four feet in length. Rope or twine should be used, not wire. Large branches and other lumber items must be cut in lengths not exceeding four feet. All these items should be separated from the leaves and grass rakings and placed in the right-of-way but not in the street.

Refrigerators and freezers and other household appliances should have their doors removed before being put out.

Items that are put out that do not meet these requirements will not be picked up, warns the Township Engineer, Robert V. Kiser. For further information, call the engineer's office at 921-7077.

Bank VP Pleads Guilty To Conspiracy & Fraud

James Fredericks of West Orange, 41-year-old former vice president of Montgomery National Bank, pleaded guilty last week to federal conspiracy and mail fraud charges. He faces a maximum of 10 years in federal prison and $500,000 in fines when he is sentenced in June.

In U.S. District Court in Camden last Thursday, Mr. Fredericks admitted that he and Michael Schneiderman, the bank's former loan officer, converted to their own use $10 million that bank customers believed they were investing with the bank. They used the money to help fund at least six separate businesses, purchase shares of stock and pay finders' fees and commissions, according to a news release by U.S. Attorney for the District of New Jersey, Samuel A. Alito Jr.

No charges have been filed as yet against Mr. Schneiderman, but the investigation by FBI special agents and U.S. postal inspectors is continuing. According to the news release, Mr. Fredericks and Mr. Schneiderman took money from bank customers for the institution's "repurchase agreements," debt instruments also referred to in the banking industry as "repos," which were to be secured with government securities held by the bank.

Montgomery's repos, like certificates of deposits (CDs), earned interest during the term of their agreement. Either interest or principal could be rolled over at the customers' request at the end of the term. But instead of depositing the funds with the bank and collateralizing them with government securities, the two officers gave customers fraudulent letters confirming the repurchase agreements and converted the funds to their own use.

They then invested the monies in companies owned in whole or in part by Mr. Fredericks, all with corporate addresses at a single street address in Roseland. Monies were also used to pay Mr. Schneiderman commissions and fees which he demanded as payment for luring unwitting investors into the scheme, Mr. Fredericks told U.S. District Court Judge Stanley S. Brotman. Judge Brotman accepted Mr. Fredericks' guilty plea and released him on $10,000 personal recognizance bond pending sentencing June 8.

Mr. Fredericks also admitted depositing the converted funds into Montgomery Bank accounts that were either controlled by him and his coconspirators or the companies that he had formed. The bank's possible losses in the scheme could reach as high as the $10 million in fraudulent repurchase agreements that were created by the two men between August, 1983, and last August.

The two later resorted to repuying prior holders of frudulent repurchase agreements with funds they received from new customers — and with bank funds — according to the Federal Information to which Mr. Fredericks pleaded guilty. Under an Information, a defendant waives the right to have his case presented to a federal grand jury and instead pleads guilty to charges made by the government.

The first count of the information to which Mr. Fredericks pleaded guilty charges him with conspiracy to commit bank fraud, for which he faces a maximum five-year jail sentence and a $250,000 fine. The second count, for mail fraud, carries the same maximum sentence.

Sky-Watchers' Alert Issued by Planetarium

A visitor from outer space will make its appearance in the early morning skies in April and May. Comet Austin, discovered last December by Rodney Austin in New Zealand, is being hailed as a "naked-eye" comet -- sky watchers who rise early should be able to see it without the assistance of telescopes or binoculars.

"Predictions are that Comet Austin will be quite bright," explains the New Jersey State Museum's curator of astronomy Dick Peery. However, Mr. Peery also cautions that comets can be notoriously unreliable and that although Comet Austin is expected to be visible to the naked-eye, it may not be.

Mr. Peery recommends that viewers look for Comet Austin during the last week of April and the first week of May. Although the comet is expected to be a naked-eye event, the use of binoculars or a telescope will make it more visible.

"The best place to see the comet," according to Mr. Peery, "is in the country sky, away from the bright lights and clouded skies of the cities. The best time to catch a glimpse of the comet is in the early morning sky -- between 2 and 4 a.m. Sky-watchers should also choose an evening when there is no moon, as the light from the moon will make the comet less visible.

The New Jersey State Museum Planetarium will offer free weekend programs at noon and 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays to show how best to locate Comet Austin.

In addition, the planetarium is coordinating two Comet Austin observation sessions with members of the Amateur Astronomers Association of Princeton. The public is invited to attend the free observation sessions, which will be held the mornings of Saturday, April 28, and Saturday, May 5, at 2 a.m.,, weather permitting.

Observers will meet in the parking lot outside the planetarium entrance at 2 a.m. They will then proceed to New Jersey's Washington Crossing State Park, with offers an observatory. Participants must provide their own transportation. The observation sessions will be from 2:30 to 5 a.m. Warm dress and binoculars or a telescope are suggested.

Judge Tells Parties To Talk About Garage

Superior Court Judge Paul G. Levy has given Princeton University and the Regional Planning Board two weeks in which to resolve their differences over the parking garage the University proposes to build on Prospect Avenue.

The Planning Board voted 6-2 with one abstention last October against granting approval to the University's plan to build a five-story parking garage on a portion of a parking lot near the Engineering Quadrangle. Neighbors from Murray Place and Aiken Avenue had protested that the garage would increase traffic and diminish property values.

Having been instructed by the Planning Board to provide additional parking before it undertakes any more building in the northeast quadrant, the University sued the Planning Board to protest the action. A hearing on the matter was held March 27 in Judge Levy's courtroom.

The judge told Gerald Mueller, attorney for the Planning Board, that the board had

Resolution Passed to Raise Meter Fees

Borough Council last week approved a resolution to raise rates on one- and two-hour meters in the Central Business District from 50 to 60 cents per hour.

By doing so, it accepted the position of the Public Works Committee that meter rates be increased, rather than meter hours extended, in order to raise revenue for the Borough.

"If we extend the hours, we penalize restaurant people and Princeton residents, who use Princeton more after dark," said Councilwoman Jane Terpstra, chair of the Public Works Committee.

At the request of Public Works, Borough Engineer Carl Peters had prepared two plans, one showing 1990 revenue projections from an increase in meter fees and the second showing revenue projections that would result from an extension of meter hours.

Council opted for the increased-fee plan, even though it projected increased revenues of $108,000, compared with the $120,000 that would result from extending the hours of meter operation.

Borough Council was expected to introduce the ordinance raising meter fees at its meeting scheduled for Thursday, April 5.

The ordinance provides for the increase from 50 to 60 cents an hour. The ten-cent rate at the Park 'n Shop lot would not be affected, but the one-hour rate would go from 25 to 50 cents and the two-hour rate from 75 cents to $1.25. All rates after that would rise 75 cents an hour.

The rate at the Dinky meters would rise from $1 to $1.50.
A number of additional meters in the CBD would become two-hour meters.

In other business, Council listened to a lengthy discussion of the proposed new zoning ordinances in the Borough: E-3, for the northeast quadrant of Princeton University, bounded by Nassau Street, Washington Road, Murray Place, and Prospect Avenue, and E-4, for campus areas of the Princeton Theological Seminary and Westminster Choir College.

Council President Marvin Reed — presiding in the absence of Mayor Barbara Sigmund — noted that representatives of the three institutions and of the neighborhoods adjacent to them had met several times since February 14. A number of representatives of the institutions, and of the neighborhoods, filled the courtroom of Borough Hall, where the meeting was being held.

Mr. Reed pointed out that there were sufficient differences between what was seen as institutional concerns and neighborhood concerns to deal differently with the Seminary and Choir College and the Engineering Quadrangle of Princeton University — which is why the originally proposed E-3 ordinance has now been separated into an E-3 and an E-4 ordinance.

Several Murray Place and adjoining-street residents — whose homes are close to the Engineering Quadrangle — objected to the proposed E-3 ordinance.

"I see tricky language in the ordinance tonight," said Murray Place resident Ilene Cohen. She asked how the doubling of the square footage in the Engineering Quadrangle deals with the problem of density. "Does the proposal meet the whole purpose of rezoning? I see no conditional use for laboratories. Where does the 200,000 square feet come from. For whose benefit is the rezoning ordinance being written?"

The proposed ordinance states, "For all contiguous land held in common ownership by the University, however, the maximum floor area permitted within the E-3 district shall be established as the amount existing as of April 1, 1990, plus, in the area west of Olden Avenue, an additional 200,000 square feet and, in the area east of Olden Avenue, an additional 200,000 square feet.

Aiken Avenue resident David Kinsey presented a "Murray Place Neighborhood E-3 Progress Report" to Council. It affirmed the residents' belief that laboratories should undergo the special public scrutiny required of conditional uses. "As the University claims it complies with such environmental standards, the conditional use approach will provide a helpful forum to reassure the public of this compliance."

The report also questioned the necessity of permitting 70-foot-high buildings throughout the Engineering Quadrangle, and asked what the campus and building design implications and off-site, neighborhood, and environmental impacts would be of the proposed 200,000 square feet of additional floor area in the E-Quad.

The report also urged the University to begin a public concept review before the Planning Board for its proposed new buildings in the E-Quad.

Concluding the two-hour discussion, Mr. Reed said that the scale of what the University anticipates in the future is significant, and the Borough has to deal with it. He suggested that discussions on the rezoning continue, and said it would be brought up again to Borough Council in the near future. Myrna V. Pearse no right to deny the application because garages are permitted in the zone. He told Mr. Mueller that if the board did not like the design it should have worked with the University, and if lighting and traffic were the concern it could have imposed conditions on the approval to address those concerns.

Judge Levy considered remanding the issue back to the Planning board with a direction that the board agree upon conditions necessary for approval. However, University lawyers, worried about the pending E-3 zone limitations, asked him to set a definite time limit for the remand. As a compromise he then ordered the two parties to work out their differences and gave them two weeks to do so.

He set April 10 as the date the parties are to come before him to report the results of the discussions. If no agreement has been reached, the litigation will continue and that date will be the second hearing. The Planning Board had scheduled a closed session Tuesday night at 10:15 after TOWN TOPICS went to press in which to discuss the matter.

$240,000 Budget Cut Is Sustained by Board

The Regional School Board last week decided not to cut the 1990-91 school budget beyond the $240,000 agreed to the previous week. Any further cuts would have had to come from the operating budget. The Board did not want to cut this because such a move would lead to a lower cap in succeeding years.

Library Hours Extended

A gift of $50,000 from the Robert Wood Johnson Jr. Charitable Trust to the Friends of the Princeton Public Library, will enable the library to be open additional hours for the remainder of this year. The additional openings, effective immediately, include 19 Sundays, 41 Thursday evenings, 4 Saturday afternoons in July, and Good Friday, Columbus Day, and Veterans' Day.

An additional gift to the library, two Sunday openings funded by the Rotary Club of Princeton, will bring the total of open Sundays to 41 in 1990, or throughout the school year. Sunday afternoon has become the library's busiest time, with many families coming together, and the new hours are expected to be especially popular.

Thursday evening hours, eliminated in 1989 because of budget constraints, were restored on March 15 for the rest of the year.

The three holiday openings and four Saturday afternoons in July are possible for the first time in the library's history because of the Johnson gift. The staff expects heavy usage on the holidays, and views the July Saturdays as an opportunity to evaluate library use on summer weekends, in the light of changing vacation patterns since the days when many residents left Princeton for the summer.

Plans are also under way for two Sunday afternoon programs in the fall, funded by the Rotary Club gift. These programs will answer requests by two-career and single-parent families for events scheduled at times when they can attend with their children.

Public Library hours through June are: Monday through Thursday, 9 to 9; Friday and Saturday, 9 to 5:30; and Sunday, 1 to 5:30.

School Superintendent Carol Choye, however, made several suggestions on how to add monies in the areas of textbooks and personnel recruiting. She told the Board she would look at ways of reorganizing the positions of assistant superintendent and of director of planning and development, and hoped to save about $40,000 in this year's budget. (Donald Malocco last week announced his resignation as assistant superintendent).

Dr. Choye also said she wants to cut back dramatically on the number of summer workshops for teachers in the annual summer staff development program, and to confine the three-day winter staff development program primarily to curriculum development. This would eliminate the need for outside speakers and consultants.

She estimated that these moves could save from $70,000 to $100,000 in this year's budget.

The monies would be used for the purchase of texthooks, a particularly critical area because the District has just adopted a new social studies curriculum and is in the process of adopting a new health curriculum.

Funds would also be directed toward personnel recruiting, particularly in the area of minority staff, and would be used to address concerns that are expected to surface in the report of the Athletic Review Committee.

Board members were favorable to Dr. Choye's suggestions, and now await further details of her plan.

Borough "Spot-Zoning" for E-Quad Harmful to Murray Place Residents

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am a resident of Murray Place. After nearly six months of neighborhood meetings, door-to-door canvassing, letter-writing, and public hearings, it seems that the proposed E-3 zoning ordinance (particularly as it affects Princeton University's E-Quad) does very little to address our concerns.

In every other educational zone, 39 feet is the proposed height limit for structures in the E-3 zone ... except in the E-Quad. Despite our continued objections, at 70 feet the proposed POEM [Photonics Opto-Electronic Materials] Building will be taller than the existing building for which it is supposedly an addition. The new building will also be closer to our homes.

With construction of the POEM Building, all vehicular traffic entering or leaving the existing parking lots behind our homes will pass not through the center of the E-Quad as it does now, but 15 feet from our property lines.

The FAR [floor-area ratio] standards acceptable to all parties have been proposed for every educational zone in the Borough, except in the E-Quad, precisely where the University plans to construct its largest new buildings. This exemption has been proposed despite the fact that the E-Quad is the only part of the University's extensive property which directly abuts a residential neighborhood.

In the interest of the entire community, we have always asked that the new ordinance include strict guidelines on laboratory use in the E-3 zone so that we and the rest of the community will at least know beforehand what kind of research will be conducted in our midst and if these activities pose any public hazard or nuisance. A simple, sane request. But conditional use and clearly stated standards for use have been dropped from the proposed ordinance. Once again, the E-Quad has been exempted.

As it affects our neighborhood, the proposed E-3 zone is an ordinance without teeth. It does little but accommodate the University's publicly stated building and development plans. It ignores (at times it seems to insult) our neighborhood's efforts and interests. It feels like "spot-zoning" in its exceptions, protecting interests of the institution — not residents.

Tax-exempt institutions are important to our community but their interests must not take undue precedence over the interests of citizens. It is also worth remembering that, as State taxpayers, we have all contributed to the POEM Building's construction.

Are three stories as opposed to four, standards for safe use, reasonable limits on development, and landscape-softened buffers too much to ask of an ordinance purportedly created to protect us from unregulated over-development? We have been given our chance to speak. We would like to think that we have also been heard.

Approach of HiTOPS Clarified by Director

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The current controversy over the proposed curriculum changes and the role of HiTOPS in the Princeton community has raised some very important issues. Why are 12 million teenagers in the United States sexually active and why do 3,000 of them get pregnant every day? Why do one in seven teenagers get a sexually transmitted disease each year and why do many teenagers find it impossible to talk to their parents about sexuality? These are serious concerns with multiple causes and often requiring multi-faceted solutions. We would like to clarify HiTOPS' approach to these issues.

HiTOPS (Health Interested Teens Own Program on Sexuality) was started in 1988 in response to the growing numbers of teenagers who were coming to Familyhorn Birth Center for pregnancy tests and health care. Believing that young people need accurate information in order to make responsible decisions, we began providing basic education on all aspects of sexual health combined with clinical care for adolescent females. It is our primary goal to help decrease the rate of teen pregnancy and the spread of sexually transmitted diseases.

Our educational program includes presentations in the community as well as programs at our center. We have been invited to a number of public and private schools, PTO meetings and community agencies to present information on sexuality issues. The programs we have provided include: Peer Pressure, Postponing Sexual Involvement, Parent-Child Communication, Puberty, Pregnancy and Birth, Sexually Transmitted Diseases, AIDS Awareness, Contraception and Date Rape.

Workshops at our center have included all-day workshops, led by nationally recognized sexuality educators, for teachers and health care providers, mother-daughter menstruation workshops and discussion groups with a local minister/therapist for parents on how to talk with their children about sexuality.

This year we invited 12 high school seniors to help us with the program. The HiTOPS Teen Council has several functions:

1. To provide HiTOPS and parent groups with a "teen perspective": what kids are doing, thinking, asking.
2. To be a liaison between the schools and HiTOPS to inform students about the programs and clinical services.
3. When invited by the schools to participate in programs, leading discussion groups or giving basic information along with staff members.

When asked to discuss contraception, we begin each presentation with the following statement: "We believe that sexual intercourse is adult behavior. We say this because it has the potential to both create and destroy life." We go on to discuss risks, consequences, peer pressure, the influence of conflicting media messages and the advantages of postponing sexual involvement.

We know that our children will have to make difficult decisions. Not just other people's children but all of our children. We are handing them a very confusing world which is more hazardous than the one we grew up in. As conscientious parents we prepare them for everything else: how to brush their teeth, how to survive in school, how to compete in sports, how to drive a car, how to handle a college interview — but we are terrified to teach them about their sexuality.

As the staff at HiTOPS and concerned parents as well, we are hopeful in the midst of controversy, because we know there is dialogue — between members of the community and the schools, between the teachers and the kids, between kids and their parents. And in the midst of the talking and the thinking and the rehashing, new alliances, new ideas and real solutions are born.

Rape of Environment Masked by Euphemisms

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Anyone who has lived in this area of New Jersey for a while has seen a lot of changes in the last few years. Condos and houses are sprouting like dandelions. But what gets me is the names of some of the developments. Talk about double entendres. On The Great Road just north of the Stuart School, developers built a pile of houses in what was once nothing but woods and called it "The Preserve." Maybe they treated the lumber in the houses with creosote so the houses are preserved. I don't know, but the woods, as they say, "ain't what they used to be." Certainly not preserved.

Go down the road a bit toward Blawenburg and they have 475 houses and a golf course going up called "The Cherry Valley Country Club." Well, when they get all those houses built it is going to look like anything but country.

And then there's my favorite, at the Junction of Rte. 206 and Cherry Valley Road. During the last year they took a big hay field and loaded it not full of bales — but you guessed it — condos. And what do they call it? "Griggs Farm." Well, I've looked high and low, up and down, around and through and try as I may, I can't see a farm through all those condos. Undoubtedly Mr. Griggs owned it at one point but that's not the point. The point is this: can't anyone call a thing by its real name without putting up a facade, trying to paint a different picture than what is really there? If someone told me to look for Griggs Farm that's what I'd look for — a farm, not a bunch of condos.

Along these lines let's call it the way it is. The reason we have so many more cars on the road, so many more fields going to condos, so much more general congestion, taxes and more of this and more of that isn't because of some great mysterious phenomenon; it is, simply put, that somewhere along the line a lot of folks had a lot of babies and now all those babies are grown up and need a place to live. I have a suspicion that if all of this gets too crazy and we begin to look for solutions to our predicament we are not going to find them by using euphemisms. Moreover, if we have too many people in a given environment could each of us willfully do our part to limit our numbers so we give not only the Earth, but our next door neighbors a break and ourselves as well?

It may sound heretical to say we may have too many people in the "land of the free" but even here, ultimately we are bound to the laws of nature, not to the laws of man. Each of us exacts a price for our survival on the earth itself. Singularly, it doesn't add up to much. Collectively it's another matter.

We can begin addressing our major problems by first dropping the facades which obscure local realities. "The Preserve" is not a preserve but a housing development. "New Jersey and You" aren't perfect together. Quite the contrary. New Jersey for many is synonymous with strip malls and track developments. Our shores are polluted, and so are most of our rivers. Farm land is disappearing at a fantastic rate, the roads are getting more and more congested and on and on. "New Jersey and You" — mauled together.

We are simply being buried by the weight of our own excess, which begins and ends with an ever-burgeoning population. There is no facade in this. It is there to see every moment of the day. In the land of the free it is our personal responsibility to be sure that we are not the undoers of our own destinies, either individually or collectively. That is basic survival. Yet, if we persist in our harebrained notions of calling a rose by any other name — or for that matter, a deteriorating environment — the inherent lie behind such folly will ultimately be its own reward.

New Jersey Students Unhappy with Sex Ed.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Recently I spoke to 100 Rutgers University students and heard many comments about the quality of the family life and sexuality education courses in which they had participated as they progressed through New Jersey public schools. In light of the letters that have appeared in the last several issues of TOWN TOPICS, and the public discussions about the emphasis and content of the revised school board health education curriculum, their recollections are worth sharing.

In overwhelming numbers, the students voiced their dissatisfaction with their courses and with the meager amount of accurate information they received. In particular, they stated that:

- most information was presented towards the end of their high school experience, long after they had turned to their peers for answers;
- the information was incomplete;
- instruction was often offered in sex-segregated groups;
- teachers were frequently unprepared, untrained and uncomfortable;
- the instruction emphasized abstinence from sexual relationships, but excluded information about methods to prevent pregnancy; and
- the messages about abstinence were repetitive and for some irrelevant, thereby making many struggle with feelings of guilt and shame.

As an educator, I came away with a feeling of sadness for these good young people who as adolescents were seeking assistance on serious issues affecting their development and their lives.

I left with several other impressions: high school students of this generation believe that making decisions about sexual behavior are private and personal and while they seek information from teachers and other adults, they are not going to accept their dicta; the more honest and open adults are with students about sexuality, the more responsible and honest they shall be in return.

Interestingly, the Rutgers students' views reinforce the findings of a 1988 survey of 4,200 sex education teachers in the United States. In Risk and Responsibility: Teaching Sex Education in America's Schools Today, (Alan Guttmacher Institute), teachers conclude that most public school courses offer students "too little information and offer it too late." The majority feel that certain topics — birth control, HIV/AIDS, sexually transmitted disease and homosexuality — should be taught by the end of seventh grade, if not earlier. Teachers responding to the survey were more likely to teach about abstinence than any other topic.

While most provided instruction about birth control methods, approximately 25 percent did so only when students asked specific questions. About a fifth of the teachers said they felt negative pressures on what they could cover in class: some felt their efforts were not supported by parents and community. (This perception of lack of parental and community support contrasts with the strong support for sex education in the polls; today more than 85 percent of United States citizens support the teaching of sex education in the public schools and majorities support teaching most "controversial" topics by the end of sixth grade.)

From what I have read, the program that the Princeton School Board is adopting is above average and addresses many of the unmet needs of the Rutgers students and United States teachers. While covering the issue of abstinence, it is far more wide ranging than the usual abstinence-training program. It seems comprehensive and balanced, offering information about birth control, sexually-transmitted diseases, HIV/AIDS prevention and other sexuality topics to students in middle rather than high school.

The only topic that is not covered at an appropriate time is abortion, which is surprising as most students today know more about that issue from the media than they do about methods of birth control. My hope is that the School Board will also spend adequate resources to assure that all elementary classroom teachers, school nurses and health teachers have had at least one recent graduate-level course in human sexuality in order to better teach the new program.

If other districts follow Princeton's lead by implementing a comprehensive program and offering on-going training opportunities for teachers and school nurses, university students of the future will hopefully be vocal in praise of the sexuality programs they received in New Jersey's public schools.

Annual Beard Contest Brings Out the Best

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The 10th Annual Long Beard Contest sponsored by the Alchemist and Barrister Restaurant represents the very best qualities of the Princeton community. The contest not only enhances community morale, it also provides a significant boost to local charities and individuals. General Manager Bob Mangone and co-owner Tom Schmeirer deserve special appreciation for their efforts.

This year the proceeds from the contest will go to a scholarship fund in the memory of Christopher Fasanella. Christopher died at the untimely age of 7 months last fall from a juvenile form of Lou Gehrig's disease. He was the son of Borough patrolman Victor Fasanella.

Special thanks also go to Mayor Barbara B. Sigmund who acted as Mistress of Ceremonies. World class congratulations are due to Gerald Boswell, who not only had the longest beard, but also shattered all previous records by having the longest whisker ever recorded in the 10 year history of the contest. Borough Council President, Marvin Reed, won second place (by a hair!). We attribute his strong second place showing to a healthy life style and the consumption of copious quantities of high quality, but not always highly pressurized, Borough water.

Last, but not least, the Borough merchants who provided the prizes and cash donations ought to be thanked for their community-minded gestures. Without their help and support, the contest would not have been the roaring success that it was.

IT'S NEW To Us

Real Korean Cuisine Highlights Seoul House

"Korean food is light and spicy. It's sort of in between Japanese and Chinese food. It has a very nice flavor, a different flavor. Also, it is not fattening. It fits in well with people wanting to keep fit."

Jennifer Dellow and Mi-Olesnevich, owners of Seoul House in Somerset, are enthusiastic about their new Korean restaurant. Located in the Franklin Mall, 1483 Route 27, it opened last November and is already attracting many regular customers from all over the area.

"People are coming from Princeton, Edison, Franklin Park and Kendall Park. Some customers know Korean food, but others have never tasted it before," note Mrs. Dellow and Mrs. Olesnevich. "There are many Korean people in this area, and they really love to come for the authentic Korean food. They often like the squid and pork. We also get a lot of first-time Korean food eaters, and then we like to recommend some dishes to them. They always seem pleased with our suggestions."

Both Mrs. Dellow and Mrs. Olesnevich were born in Korea. "I married an American soldier who was stationed in Korea, and then we came here," recalls Mrs. Olesnevich, and Mrs. Dellow came to the United States 13 years ago and then married her husband, Jim Dellow.

Both women had worked in restaurants in the area and had looked forward to having their own business one day. "We always thought it would be nice to have our own restaurant," says Mrs. Dellow. "Even though it's very hard work and long hours, we are really enjoying it."

Lunch and dinner are served at Seoul House and include such dishes as charbroiled shortribs marinated in a special sauce, sauted tender sliced beef marinated in a house sauce, and vermicelli noodles with shredded beef and vegetables. These dishes are often recommended for those sampling Korean food for the first time.

"Rice and vegetables are served with the entrees, and we have several kinds of vegetables served in small dishes," says Mrs. Dellow. "We also have home-style noodles and what we call 'Korean spaghetti", which is our house noodles served with a brown sauce. Also," she continues, "for those who aren't quite used to the Korean dishes, there is chicken and beef teriyaki."

THE REAL THING: "We offer very authentic Korean food," comment Jennifer Dellow and Mi-Olesnevich, owners of Seoul House, located in the Franklin Mall, Route 27 in Somerset. "It's fun for people to share different dishes and to sample the different tastes. We have many different items on the menu."

Soups, including miso and mandu, and appetizers are also available, as is special Korean barley tea, which accompanies the meals. Soft drinks are also offered.

Spicy Dishes

Some customers enjoy the spicier dishes, report the owners, and fried loin of pork marinated in a hot sauce and fried chicken served in a sweet and sour sauce are two popular items.

The already large menu will soon be expanded, reports Mrs. Olesnevich. "We will also be adding new dishes. Our chef, Wan Chul Park, has had 30 years of experience cooking Korean food."

Lunches start at $5.95 and include noodles, rice and entree, and dinners are $6.95 to $24.95 with rice and vegetables included. Customers may bring their own wine, and take-out service is also available.

The restaurant also offers off-premises catering, and Mrs. Dellow and Mrs. Olesnevich hope to expand this part of the business.

The light airy restaurant, with its congenial atmosphere and typical Korean decor and artwork (including one painting by Mrs. Dellow's father), is a pleasant place for dining.

"It's a nice place for the entire family," add the owners. "We are very glad to see families with children, and we like to be friends with the customers. We try to know their names, and we hope they'll come back again. We try to have special service.

"We enjoy seeing the customers enjoying the food," continue Mrs. Dellow and Mrs.

Home Decor Specialties At Altina's World

Window treatments of all kinds are very popular today. People are creating a variety of interesting looks, with a full range of fabric and styles from which to choose. It's a long way from the days of simple curtains or Venetian blinds.

"We have anything in window treatments, including every kind of shade - balloon, pleated, Roman Austrian and cloud, to name just some. We also carry curtains and blinds, such as vertical, pleated and mini," notes Altina Noel, owner of Altina's World of Creative Fashion in the Princeton Shopping Center.

The shop, which opened March 22, also offers reupholstery ("a big part of the business"), slip covers, tablecloths, pillows, and cornices and head boards. "Everything is done to order," reports Altina. "It usually takes four days to a week to get a rod and two to three weeks for a shade. Some of our pillows are ready made and available for purchase. Some are also handpainted, and we can also coordinate them with your color scheme and decor. They can be customized."

Altina's offers a wide selection of fabric, including such brands as Waverly, Robert Allen, Schumacher and Kravet, among many others. "I also want people to know that I will work with their own fabric" says Altina. "If they have something they like, I'll be glad to work with that. I can also help them with how much fabric they'll need and what style will be most appropriate for that fabric. Sometimes people know exactly what they want, but often, they like advice."

SPRUCE UP FOR SPRING: Altina's World of Creative Fashion has just opened at the Princeton Shopping Center, and it offers custom window treatments (hard and soft), reupholstery, slip covers, pillows, cornices and headboards, and an extensive selection of fabrics. "We're here just in time for spring," notes owner Altina Noel. "We hope customers will be thinking of a new look for their home and come in and discover what we have to offer."

Altina reports that balloon shades continue to be very popular in window treatments and that "People also like the swags. Anything that drapes over the rod is popular. One of our prettiest treatments is a pull swag drapery, which can be used for a window or for a large doorway. It has a graceful, formal look and has become very popular now, especially with new homes.

"Also," she continues, "the bishop's sleeve look of drapes is popular now, as is 'puddling,' when the drapery folds on the floor."

A variety of fabric is in demand, she notes, and "We're seeing a definite contemporary style and also fabrics that look handpainted. The earthtone colors, in interesting patterns and designs, are also popular. The floral prints and some with an Oriental look are favorites, too. You also see mixing large patterns with small prints, as in the case of sofas, chairs and draperies. They can be very different, but with coordinated colors."

Cotton, Chintz & Lace

Most of the fabrics are cotton and chintz, she adds. and lace is also staging a comeback. "We have it in very pretty patterns, and it can be used alone or as a sheer with other drapes. It's a very traditional look."

Altina says she especially enjoys working with the different fabrics, and she has designed a special table for easy access and display of the sample books. "It helps people to be able to see them more easily."

A native of Brazil, Altina has had a window treatment business for the past 10 years, working out of her own home. Although she had studied home economics in Brazil and always enjoyed cooking and sewing (at one time, she was in the catering business), when she first came to the United States more than 20 years ago, it was for an entirely different reason. "I came here when I went to the Princeton Theological Seminary to study Christian education," she recalls. "I had originally planned to go to Denver, but I took a tour here and fell in love with Princeton. I had always planned on going back to Brazil, but then I met my husband and I ended up staying. I love Princeton.

"Also," she adds, "one thing I always said was that when my kids were in high school and college, I always wanted to work. It was important to be home with them first, but when they got older, I could have my own business, and I was always interested in this field."

She says she had been looking for a suitable location for the shop for the past few years, and when the opportunity came to open in the Princeton Shopping Center, she was pleased. "I think it's a very good location. I've always liked this shopping center, and I feel very encouraged. In the first week, I made at least one sale every day I've been open."

Customers have been delighted with the charming decor of the small cozy shop. There are springtime flower arrangements, and an attractive mural by artist Judy Raybon decorates part of one wall. Framed with a lace swag, it depicts a scene of Edwardian London, and the effect is as if one is gazing out of a window onto the street below. Altina adds that she eventually plans to include a small art gallery in the store. "We will represent artists whose work is appropriate for our shop."

Looks Like a Home

"I really wanted the shop to look like a home," she continues. "I want people to enjoy coming in. I like to work with people, and I enjoy the creative aspect of the job. I feel I'm really creating something and making something nice. It's wonderful to go to someone's house and see their response. They are so pleased. I like to stay with the customer from beginning to end."

Altina will go to a customer's house one time for a free estimate, and she will also recommend interior decorators, if clients wish.

Prices at the shop start at $24 for a 14-inch by 14-inch knife-edge pillow (labor only) and $120 for re-upholstery of a very small chair (labor only). Labor for a balloon shade for a 30-inch by 4-inch window would be in the $144 range.

Fabrics for drapes and shades starts at $17 a yard, and tapestry for re-upholstery is $29 and up. Gift certificates, which Altina reports are popular as wedding presents, are also available.

Flower arrangements often provide the finishing touch for a room, and these can be ordered through the shop, too. "Everything is really a specialty at the shop," says Altina. "I like to treat each individual person's needs in a special way. Service is very important, and my goal is that people will come back again and again."

Altina's is open Monday through Saturday 10 to 5 and Thursday until 8.

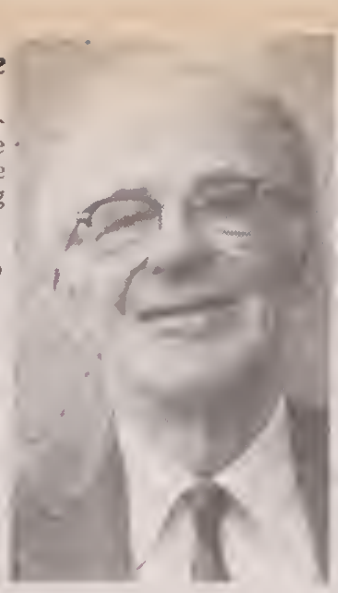
or so it seemed to their Congressmen — in support of the project, and the efforts were ultimately successful: funding was restored.

Dr. Bahcall would prefer to be known for his contribution to the scientific aspect of the project, which is indisputable. But, were it not for his special talent in lobbying, the telescope might very well never have been funded. He attributes his success to "chutzpah. Either you have it or you don't." Dr. Spitzer phrases it differently, saying, "John has a keen perception of what makes people tick." Dr. Bahcall would have much preferred to spend his time doing science, but "I looked on it as a public service," he says. "It was something that had to be done."

Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, then Mercer County Freeholder, played a significant role in the lobbying efforts, helping the astronomers gain access to the House Appropriations Committee, of which her mother, Lindy Boggs, was a member. Congresswoman Boggs turned out to be an extremely eloquent spokeswoman for the telescope.

Dr. Bahcall and his wife, astronomer Neta Bahcall, have devoted a combined 25 years to the Space Telescope effort. Neta is a professor of astronomy at Princeton University, but had joined the Space Telescope Institute at Johns Hopkins University when it was first organized in 1983 as Head of the General Observer Branch of the Space Telescope. She was subsequently promoted to the Director's office, as Head of Science Program Selection. "We started from scratch," she notes, "built up a system of procedures, processes, rules for acceptance, all the connections with the astronomy community."



Lyman Spitzer, Jr.

John Bahcall

Exciting Science

Sixty-four astronomers who designed the instruments and otherwise helped make the project a reality are guaranteed observing time during the telescope's first year of operation. After they are taken care of, observing time is open to any scientist who wants to do an experiment. There has been heavy demand for all the instruments on the telescope, and the main criterion for selection is a proposal for exciting science.

"An exciting thing is the science that can be done with all the six instruments," says Dr. Bahcall. "I had to put together six separate panels, by discipline, to cover the areas to be investigated. People want to study planets, and comets, stars, star clusters and star populations, galaxies and their evolution, quasars and the interstellar and intergalactic media."

Dr. Bahcall found working at the Space Telescope Institute "very different and interesting. The Institute was 'mission oriented' with deadlines and targets and the need to get things moving — very different from the quiet, ivory-tower atmosphere at the University, where you have a lot of time to think about problems and their solutions."

Neta Bahcall

Involvement with the Space Telescope has meant no small personal sacrifice for the Bahcalls and their three children. For the first four of the six years Neta spent at the Space Telescope Institute, she commuted to Baltimore, while John remained in Princeton. During the last two years, they rented their Adams Drive home and lived in an apartment in Baltimore, while John commuted back to the Institute for Advanced Study. Both are very excited about the possible revelations from the orbiting telescope. Says Neta: "Looking from a ground-based telescope through the atmosphere is like looking outside of a house through a curtain. You know there are people and trees out there, but they aren't very clear. If you put the telescope above the atmosphere, it's like opening the curtain. Suddenly, you can see things clearly."

The Size of Things

The telescope itself is "about the size of a bus," says Edward J. Groth III, professor of physics at Princeton University, who in 1977 was awarded the NASA contract to develop the ground system. His official title was "Data and Operations Team Leader" and he spent five years worrying about how the ground system was going to operate the telescope and analyze the data — a function which was essentially taken over by the Space Telescope Institute. Prof. Groth now functions more as a consultant, but is planning an experiment using what appears to be the most popular instrument on the telescope — the Wide Field and Planetary Camera, or WF/PC (pronounced "wiffpick"). He is now an associate of the WF/PC team, and, as such, has guaranteed observing time.

Prof Groth conveys a vivid impression of the gargantuan size of facilities at the Kennedy Space Center. "Everything down there is humongous," he remarks, shaking his head. "The vehicle assembly building is huge — huge. You see it on TV, it looks like a cube and gives you no idea of the scale of the thing. Inside that building they have transporters to bring in the mobile launching pad. They stack up solid rocket boosters on the pad and then put in a big tank. Then they bring in the shuttle (about the size of a DC-9) on top of that and they have to have room to move all this around with enormous cranes."

The telescope was due to go up in December, 1983, but then Challenger exploded and the "big science" project has been sitting in another huge building — the vertical processing facility — in a plastic bag. "It hasn't been 'just stored,' " says Prof. Groth. "It's been worked on and improved constantly. Some very serious bugs have been worked out in the years since Challenger exploded. Higher-tech batteries are being used; we have a better solar array and some problems with the

The Telescope and Its Instruments

The Edwin P. Hubble Space Telescope is essentially a 12-ton tube with a mirror at each end. Light enters the open front of this tube, strikes the 94-inch diameter concave primary mirror, and is reflected back to the 12" diameter convex secondary mirror which, in turn, bounces the light back through a hole in the center of the primary mirror to be analyzed by six different instruments. The two mirrors are 193 inches apart and, in order to maintain a sharp focus, this distance must not vary by more than one ten-thousandth of an inch.

As telescope mirrors go, the primary mirror is not particularly large, but its position in space more than makes up for its smaller size. Neither x-rays nor ultraviolet rays can be detected from the ground; both are blocked by the atmosphere. Other wavelengths are blurred by it. The telescope should be able to detect stars 50 times fainter than the faintest (i.e., most distant) stars that can be seen from the ground.

The most used instrument is expected to be the Wide Field/Planetary Camera (WF/PC). Operated as a wide field camera, it will image extended faint objects, such as galaxies and clusters of galaxies. In planetary mode it will cover bright extended objects, such as planets, with short exposures. WF/PC is oriented to the infrared and visible end of the spectrum and should provide images 10 times sharper than can be obtained with a ground-based telescope.

The Faint Object Camera has been provided by the European Space Agency and is oriented toward the ultraviolet and blue end of the spectrum. This camera will give even sharper images, perhaps 50 times better than a ground-based telescope. The Goddard High Resolution Spectrograph will observe bright objects in detail and operates only in the ultraviolet. A Faint Object Spectrograph will study faint bodies in somewhat less detail in the UV and visible spectrum. A High Speed Photometer will measure rapid fluctuations in star and galaxy light output and can make 100,000 measurements each second. It will be useful for the study of rapidly fluctuating pulsars and perhaps black holes. The telescope's Fine Guidance Sensors will point it at its observational targets and will also measure accurately positions of astronomical bodies.

The telescope will be powered by an array of solar panels. There will be a limited time in which to get the telescope into orbit with the panels oriented toward the sun, after which the batteries would run down before the solar energy source is locked in. The instruments would then become cold and break. The other danger is damage from being hit by space debris. It has been estimated that there is a 1% chance of the telescope's being knocked out of commission in this way. The mirror is believed to be fairly safe, but something might hit a working part in an inaccessible spot, although there is hope that some things may be repairable by astronauts.

"This is not a project for the faint of heart," sums up astronomer Tod Lauer.

fabrication of circuit boards have been reworked."

The 'bugs' are not always metaphorical. Installation of the telescope in the shuttle was delayed for a day or so by the discovery of a small cloud of midges — small, mosquito-like insects — on the door of the loading bay. Midge traps were immediately set and some 40 midges captured. Fear of damage to the instruments — and imagined tabloid headlines should an insect image be recorded — allayed, the telescope was duly installed.

The scientists have been exposed to another aspect of American life which they are normally able to avoid, notes Prof. Groth — public relations. NASA decided that those likely to be interviewed by a press critical of the cost of the Space Telescope needed a short course in "media training." This involved a day with a trainer who labeled herself "Angry Annie." The first taboo is standing with one's hands crossed in front of one — a position known as the "fig leaf." Neta Bahcall, also coached on media presentations, although not by Annie, remarks, "They show you what not to do in such a graphic way that it really sticks in your head."

"Wiffpickers"

Princeton is also home to three members of the WF/PC team — James Gunn, Tod Lauer and Donald Schneider.

Dr. Gunn, Eugene Higgins Professor of Astronomy at Princeton University, and Deputy Primary Investigator for WF/PC, played a large part in designing the camera, which was actually built at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in California. Prof. Gunn worked for six or seven months on the proposal while he was at the California Institute of Technology, and built a prototype of WF/PC — called "4-shooter" — which he used for observations at the Hale Telescope in Arizona. Experience with "4-shooter" gave the scientists valuable insight into the requirements for an orbiting instrument.

In particular, a serious problem was accidentally discovered in the charge-coupled devices — detectors in the camera. This inspired a furious period of testing and research before the problem was solved. "We don't expect any more nasty problems," says Prof. Gunn, "but you never know."

Perched on a computer chair — the one square foot of clear space in his office — Prof. Gunn admits to frustration at not being able to "get up there and fix the camera if things go wrong." An almost fanatic "hands-on" scientist, he was able to participate more than is usual for a NASA project in the actual building of the device. He has a pretty big program on quasars in mind for his team's guaranteed time, and is interested in studying the galaxies in which they are found "and you absolutely can't do that from earth. I have yet to believe this is going to happen," he says. "I've been working on it so long. I'll believe it when it flies."

Prof. Gunn's time involvement on the project has been very large. In the early days, there were all the engineering and science problems and the building of the camera. Later, there was more bureaucracy. "I've never quite come to terms with it [the bureaucracy]. It's not like the old days, but I suppose one can become convinced it's necessary."

Also involved in the WF/PC team are the two youngest astronomers interviewed. Tod Lauer, 32, is on the research staff in the Princeton University astronomy department, and became a "wiffpicker" through his mentor, Prof. Gunn. He is mostly involved in computer analysis of images and the calibration and peculiarities of the camera.

At the Institute for Advanced Study, Donald Schneider, 35, is also a key member of the WF/PC team. He spent a long time preparing proposals for the camera and making computer simulations of what the Space Telescope pictures were going to look like. He was hired by John Bahcall in 1985 as a long-term member of the Institute. "I love it here," he says. "It's very stimulating."

SUFFERING FROM TELESCOPE ANXIETY? One way to alleviate it is to build a model of the shuttle, Discovery, which will take the telescope into orbit. Princeton astronomer Tod Lauer shows off his model, temporarily disconnected from its launch pad.

Donald Schneider

True Space-Age Scientists

The younger men, although heavily involved in computer analysis, quickly point out that they are not "hackers." They are mostly excited about the science they can do using the computers. Tod Lauer's excitement is palpable. He would have liked to be an astronaut, "but it would have taken too much time away from astronomy. When I was 8 years old, I remember Mariner 4. It was so exciting to see pictures from space. I really grew up with the space program. It's wonderful to be able to ask a question and then build a space vehicle to answer it." He is also very sensitive to the public interest in astronomy. "It makes me feel I haven't wasted my life. When you find something interesting, it's on the front page of the New York Times. You feel an obligation to get the results out to people so they can see what they've bought."

Dr. Schneider's enthusiasm is quieter, but no less intense. He, too, grew up with the space program, although he says he never wanted to be an astronaut. "I assumed the world was always this exciting," he says. "You have to take something of a detached attitude towards the telescope launch, or you'd go crazy. But now it's so close, you just have to be getting excited."

"There is something about this that makes people committed to the project and makes them try to work harder to understand the problems," says Dr. Lauer.

One who was totally committed, and knew he would never see the telescope launched, was Robert Danielson, a Princeton University astronomer who died in 1976, after having expended enormous time and energy, especially on behalf of planetary scientists. Dr. Danielson insisted on working non-stop on the telescope right up until his death.

Despite NASA's huge bureaucracy, and despite its orientation towards engineering rather than pure science, the astronomers are eager to give the organization the credit so clearly due it in making the Space Telescope a reality. Lyman Spitzer and John Bahcall are particular about stressing this. Says Dr. Bahcall, "If you judge it by its achievements, they are extraordinary beyond any belief that we would have had just a couple of decades ago. If you could change any of the things people generally complain about in NASA's operations, I'm not at all sure they'd be any more successful than they are now."

So, as launch approaches, the world's astronomers wait anxiously, with, as the project motto puts it "conscious expectation of the unexpected." Dr. Spitzer likes to quote Robert Louis Stevenson: "To travel hopefully is better than to arrive." If the telescope goes into orbit successfully, the astronomers will have arrived, but they will also continue to travel for many years.

for auction at prices starting at $55,000.

Some of the 166 Colonnade Pointe home owners voiced concern that the auction's potential bargains could cause a drop in the values of other homes in the development, and perhaps in other projects.

Responding to a statement by Colonnade Pointe Homeowners Association Trustee James C. McCann that there was a lot of worry that the developer was going down the tubes and this was how he was going to dump the units, Cynthia Wootten, Weingarten-Siegel's director of marketing, said the company was the second largest builder in the State and has a financial state that is extremely stable and strong.

She added that the company could wait 1½ to 2 years to sell in the conventional manner, but was acting to avoid what could become tremendous carrying costs.

Easter Egg Hunt Set At Scanticon-Princeton

The ninth annual Scanticon Easter egg hunt will be held Easter Sunday, April 15, at 9:30 a.m. for children 6 and under, and at 10 a.m. for children 7 and over. A bicycle will be awarded in each age group to the child finding the silver egg.

On Saturday, April 14, Scanticon will host breakfast with the Easter Bunny at 9 a.m.

For more information and reservations, call 452-7800.

Tree Hugging Day Set By Princeton Students

Three trees are cut down every business hour to supply Princeton University with copier paper, and Princeton undergraduates will hug trees Wednesday in an effort to try to save them.

This figure, calculated by students from consumption estimates from four of the largest paper purchasing departments in the University, does not include paper used in many office copiers or laser printers, so it is actually an underestimate. The school's Purchasing Department has agreed to offer 50% recycled copy paper as an option for departments to order.

This Wednesday, April 4, Princeton students were planning to hug trees and wear green arm hands in an effort to raise awareness of the problem. The purpose of the demonstration is to raise student and faculty support for ordering the recycled paper, and to raise general awareness of domestic and global deforestation issues. All department administrators were scheduled to receive letters informing them of the availability of the new paper and asking them to switch to it.

The demonstration is part of the Princeton Earth Day 1990 celebration, which will continue until May 4. Organizers of the event are Donna Riley '93, Todd Goldman '91, and Doug Hsu '91. The demonstration is believed to be the only one of its kind in the United States this year. It will take place from 11:30 to 1 in front of McCosh Hall.

For more information, call Princeton Earth Day coordinators, Todd Goldman, 734-0255, or Doug Hsu 734-7091

Great "Square" Easter Egg Hunt

The Nassau Inn will host The Great Square Easter Egg Hunt on the Palmer Square Green on Easter Sunday, April 15, at 12:30 p.m. The first annual Palmer Square hunt will include photographs with the Easter Bunny, balloons, and a variety of prizes, including grand prizes for square eggs.

Registration will be held on the Green beginning at 11:30 a.m. Children will be divided into three age groups and will participate in egg hunts in different areas. The hunt will be limited to children ten and under.

Easter Bunny's Visit

The Easter Bunny — cute, fluffy, with tall ears and a pink nose — will be at the Princeton Shopping Center on Saturday, April 14.

The Easter Bunny will arrive just in time for the Easter egg hunt for the whole family in the Shopping Center courtyard. The eggs will be filled with special gifts or certificates from the Princeton Shopping Center merchants. Easter Bunny will also offer free goodies to children.

Ethics & Gender Topics Of University Lecture

Geoffrey Weeks, Simon Senior Fellow at the University of Manchester in England, will lecture on ethics and gender on Tuesday at 8 in Dodds Auditorium on the Princeton University campus.

Dr. Weeks is a well-known writer on values and sexuality. Some of his books include Sexuality and its Discontents, Sexuality, and Sex, Politics, and Society. He is currently working on a collection of essays entitled Against Noture. The title of his lecture here is "The Sphere of the Intimate: Sex, Gender, and the Ethics of Everyday Life."

The talk will explore the moral confusion that has resulted from the rapid social change brought on by feminism and lesbian and gay politics, over issues ranging from abortion to HIV/AIDS.

The lecture is open to the public free of charge.

Bach B Minor Mass Set By Musical Amateurs

Constantina Tsolainou will lead the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs in an informal reading of Bach's Mass in B Minor Sunday at 4 at the Unitarian Church.

Soloists include Lorna MacDonald, soprano; Holly Phares, alto; Michael Paul, tenor, and James Wells, bass. Visitors are welcome; a $4 admission fee includes refreshments and the use of a choral score. Students and nonparticipants are admitted free of charge.

The monthly meetings of the Society are attended by an average of 120 singers and 30 orchestra members. The organization is ideal for the individual who enjoys making music but cannot give time to rehearsing for a performance.

Founded in 1935, the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs holds monthly readings of choral masterworks from October through April. Beginners and experienced choral singers join forces in a session that combines the experience of rehearsal and performance.

Free Lecture Series Set by Watershed Ass'n.

The Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association is planning a series of free lectures on environmental issues this spring.

The first will take place Thursday at 7:30 and is entitled "Pesticide Alternative for the Homeowner." The discussion will focus on the hazards of pesticides in lawns and gardens and suggest safe alternatives.

A discussion of hazards in household products will he the topic for Thursday, April 19, at 8. Susan Topf of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection will provide information on products that are personally hazardous and environmentally unsafe. Before the program there will be a pot-luck dinner at 7 for which participants should bring a covered dish and the recipe.

For further information call 737-7592.

Bridge with a Champion

The Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association will present a fund-raising evening of party bridge on Monday at 7 with Bob Hamman, International Grand Master of the World Bridge Federation, eight-time world team champion and former world pairs champion. Mr. Hamman will share bridge advice and anecdotes and will play at two tables simultaneously.

Each player will have several opportunities to play with or against the champion. There will be refreshments and prizes.

Project to Map Princeton Borough from the Air Will Provide Accurate Survey, Construction Data

As a plane flies 1,000 feet over Princeton Borough, a camera snaps photographs of hundreds of targeted objects. These photos will then be placed in a stereoscopic plotter, which will convert them into maps.

Some $285,000 — most of it budgeted in previous years — will be used for this aerial mapping, which will clearly indicate all ground features. These include streets, buildings, signs, curbs, manholes, fire hydrants, parking meters, trees, lights, and houses — everything, said Borough Engineer Carl Peters, that is visible from the air.

Also developed will be maps that show the contours, slopes, and elevation of Borough land.

"The eastern 13 states are chaos when it comes to surveying."

"Maps are one of the first things required in the design of a roadway, sewer system, or anything else," said Mr. Peters. "Contractors must be shown where to place things and what will be in their way, so they know how to build and estimate the project."

Without aerial maps, the Engineering Department must depend on field surveying and drafting techniques to develop a base map for construction drawings.

This is not an inexpensive proposition. Mr. Peters reports that in 1985, $17,000 was spent on mapping Wiggins Street from Bayard to Chestnut. The cost was another $17,000 to map a square surrounded by Nassau, Spring, Witherspoon and Vandeventer.

"Because of the magnitude of projected Borough planning over a five-year period, it became economical to have aerial photos taken and have plans prepared that way," said Mr. Peters.

Depository for the Future

"The Engineering Department was created as a depository of records. These need to be depicted on an accurately scaled map so people in the future who come back to do a project when we're all gone will have this record to aid them," pointed out Mr. Peters.

Princeton Borough is one of the leaders among municipalities to have embarked on aerial mapping. The Borough's small size — about 1.8 square miles — gives it an edge over larger towns in taking on this project.

The Borough mapping will include a survey of monumentation, which will be of great help in planning, said Mr. Peters. Small concrete monuments set with brass discs were placed around the Borough during the Depression. They act as survey reference points.

Additional concrete monuments were added during the mapping process, bringing the total number of markers to 150.

"The eastern 13 states are chaos when it comes to surveying," said Mr. Peters. "It goes back to Colonial times, when there was no system of blocks. The Government later set up a uniform system of surveying in all the other states.

"This causes all sorts of conflict between deeds. Old deeds would say something like, 'Beginning at the oak tree at the corner of the Mayor's lot and running about 100 feet to Captain Hook's well.' "

These boundaries may have been very clear at the time the deed was transferred, but, as time passed, many of these natural monuments were destroyed. This creates a problem in re-establishing what was actually meant.

The monuments will tie in with the State system that uses them as reference points in determining the location of any point on the ground. Mr. Peters said he hopes eventually to require that all surveys filed in the Borough have borders shown in reference to this system.

The aerial maps of the Borough are on a scale of one inch to 30 feet. Each map is 24 by 36 inches, and 100 were needed to cover the municipality.

Plotting Everything Under Streets

The Engineering Department plans to plot everything under Borough streets and add it to the maps. Mr. Peters will then send a copy to the utility companies, asking them whether this information conforms to their records.

The next step would be for the Borough to review its own records and the feedback from the utility companies and arrive at the best estimate of what lies underground. Then, whenever there is excavation in the public right of way, any previously unreported utility lines, or any new ones, would be measured from a monument.

"The [computer] disc is to maps what the CD is to music."

"In the past, we did not know what we would find underground when the street was opened," said Mr. Peters. "This made things very difficult."

All this information will then be stored on computer discs. "The disc is to maps what the CD is to music," said Mr. Peters.

The computer can separate different categories of information. Separate layers can show the street surface, sanitary sewers, property lines, gas mains, water mains, telephone lines, underground electric facilities, traffic signs, and anything else on, under, or above Borough streets. "We could prepare a map for the Fire Department, for example, showing where the hydrants are," said Mr. Peters.

The aerial mapping project is expected to be completed by June. The balance of the project — the scope of which has not yet been determined — is expected to take many years to complete.

—Myrna K. Bearse

Sigmund to be Honored At Eagleton Dinner

Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund will be honored by the Center for the American Women and Politics (CAWP) of the Eagleton Institute of Politics at Rutgers University at a dinner on Tuesday, April 17, at the Hyatt Regency-Princeton.

The event will be a benefit to kick off CAWP's 20th anniversary endowment campaign. Mayor Sigmund is a former staff member.

The Princeton High School Studio Band will play at the dinner.

A reception at 6:30 will be followed by dinner at 7:30. Contribution is $100 per person; $1,000 per table of ten.

Committee Adopts Budget Awards Major Contract

Following the marathon meeting on rezoning lower Witherspoon Street last Monday night, township Committee conducted two more major pieces of business.

It adopted the 1990 municipal budget, and it awarded a $1.3 million contract for the construction of new and renovated playing fields at Grover Park and Hilltop Park.

Deputy Mayor Phyllis Marchand voted against adoption of the budget for the same reason she voted against its introduction a month ago. The budget calls for a seven cent increase in the municipal tax rate over the 1989 rate of 63 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Mrs. Marchand noted that Committee in its last budget work session were agreed on a nine cent increase, but on the night it was introduced the increase was brought down two more cents by reducing the amount in surplus that would be used to offset future tax rate increases. She went on record as being opposed to the change and opposed to reducing the surplus to that degree.

The 1990 Township budget totals $13,900,949. This represents an increase of $1,793,242 over last year's budget of $12,107,707. Fifty percent or $1 million of this increase is directly attributable to capital projects. Salary adjustments account for $650,000 and health insurance costs add another $117,000 to the increase.

The 1990 capital budget totals $4,780,000. The municipal tax rate is 70 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. For a home assessed at $200,000, the 1990 municipal (without school and County) taxes will be $1,400.

In other business, Committee awarded a contract for $1,325,032.50 to Rochelle Contracting Co. for the improvements to Grover Park and Hilltop Park. Another contract, in an amount not to exceed $69,600, was approved for TM Associates to monitor the work by Rochelle Contracting.

Food Allergies Topic Of Holistic Health Talk

Philip L. Bonnet M.D. will lead an informal seminar called "Food Allergy: Fad Diagnosis or Present Day Scourge" on Tuesday, April 17, at 8 at the Unitarian Church. The event is sponsored by the Holistic Health Association.

In his talk, Dr. Bonnet will show his audience how to recognize food allergies. Cravings are the most likely tip-off, he says. Dr. Bonnet will also include case material as well as discussion of diagnostic and treatment methods.

Together with Dr. Carl Pfeiffer, Dr. Bonnet started the Brain Bio Center in 1973, and has been actively involved in nutritional and orthomolecular medicine. He has been in private practice since 1977.

Admission is $4 for members of the Holistic Health Association and $6 for nonmembers. For more information, call the HHAPA office at 924-8580.

D. Hunt Stockwell

Speaker, Emcee Picked For Granville Dinner

D. Hunt Stockwell, senior vice president/branch administrator with Chemical Bank, will deliver the keynote address at the sixth Annual Granville Academy Graduation and Dinner Dance, "Do Your Best," Friday, at the Hyatt Regency Princeton.

As senior vice president/hranch administrator, Mr. Stockwell has overall responsibility for the $5 billion assets of the bank's 50 branch offices in Burlington, Camden, Cumberland, Gloucester, Mercer and Middlesex Counties. Karen Richardson, who for two years has been the host of New Jersey Network's award-winning public affairs program, Another View, will serve as mistress of ceremonies.

Ms. Richardson, a Trenton resident, was recently recognized by the American Women's Radio & Television for her show entitled, Women In Power and was nominated for an Emmy Award for her program about the plight of runaway teenagers.

The dinner dance will begin with cocktails and hors d'oeuvres from 5:30 until 6:30. The students, their families and other guests will be joined by Ossie Davis, the actor, producer and author who starred in Spike Lee's Do The Right Thing, as "Da Mayor," earning the NAACP Image Award for Best Supporting Actor; as well as School Dave; Harry & Son; The Cardinal and The Hill. Additionally, he has directed several pictures such as Cotton Comes to Harlem; Kongi's Harvest; Black Girl and Gordon's War.

The Academy, founded in 1983 by William Granville Jr., a Trenton native and Mobil executive, is a "free" coaching and counselling laboratory designed for pre-college students to gain introductory knowledge of business and industry.

Tickets for the affair are limited and may be obtained by phoning (212) 883-3473.

Friends of Open Space Activities are Listed

The Friends of Princeton Open Space will sponsor several activities this weekend.

There will be a birdwalk Saturday from 8 to 9:30 in Mountain Lakes Nature Preserve. The walk will be led by the FOPOS naturalist, Carol Ann McCormick, and is open to the public free of charge. Novice as well as experienced birders are invited.

At 11, Ms. McCormick will lead a family nature walk in the preserve. Participants will look for skunk cabbage, one of the earliest spring wildflowers. Children are welcome on this walk, but not pets. Participants for both walks should meet in the Community Park North

Adults and children are invited on an amphibian foray Saturday evening from 7 to 8:30. The program is free but limited to 15 participants, and pre-registration is required. The group will look for frogs, toads and salamanders and record their findings.

Participants should wear waterproof boots and bring a flashlight.

On Sunday from 8 to 3 a special birdwatching trip to Brigantine National Wildlife Refuge has been planned. The trip will be led by Paul Rodewald, a graduate of Rutgers University in natural resource management who has participated in ornithology research projects in Puerto Rico, the Sierra Nevada Mountains, Alaska, California and Venezuela.

The trip will be limited to 15 participants, and everyone should bring binoculars. There will be a fee of $3 per person for the trip, plus the entrance fee of $3 per vehicle. Registered participants will meet in the Community Park North parking lot and caravan to Brigantine. Car pools can be arranged for those who do not want to drive.

Call 683-9022 to register.

Peace Writing Contest Open to Area Students

The Committee for Peacemaking in Families, in the Community and among Nations at Nassau Presbyterian Church and the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament are sponsoring a peace writing contest.

The contest is open to all area high school students, grades 9 to 12, who are invited to write an essay, short story, poem or one-act play after reflecting on a statement made by Czechoslovakian President Vaclav Havel in his address to Congress last February and what it says about peacemaking. Mr. Havel said: "We are still incapable of understanding that the only genuine backbone of all our actions, if they are to be moral, is responsibility — responsibility to something higher than my family, my country, my company, my success."

Submissions must be postmarked no later than May 1 and mailed to Peace Writing Contest, c/o John Young, 3 Queenston Place, Princeton 08540. Entries should be typed, double-spaced and a suggested maximum of five pages. Papers will be judged on originality, thoughtfulness and clarity of expression by a panel of writers and teachers appointed by the sponsors.

The winners will receive cash prizes ranging from $300 to $100, with $50 prizes for those receiving honorable mention.

News of the THEATRES

New McCarter Director Of Audience Development

McCarter Theatre has appointed Alice Miller as director of audience development in the group sales staff.

Ms. Miller is targeting the nonprofit sector as a way of attracting new audiences. To date, three nonprofit organizations have each reserved 150 seats at performances of Enemy of the People and Woman in Mind and are selling them to members and others as fund-raisers. A special reception follows each of these benefit performances, and members may also receive additional privileges for their participation.

The first benefit was a performance of Enemy of the People, which benefitted the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association. The Association for the Advancement of Mental Health will have a benefit on May 19, and the American Heart Association on May 20.

For information on how a nonprofit group can schedule a theater party, call Ms. Miller at 683-9100, ext. 6004.

Auditions for 'Working' By Franklin Villagers

The Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre will hold open auditions for the musical Working on Thursday from 7:30 to 10:30 and Saturday from 1 to 5. Auditions are by appointment only and may be arranged by calling the theatre at (201) 873-2710. Performances of Working will run weekends from June 1 through 24.

Working is based on interviews of working people that were conducted and compiled by Studs Terkel in his book by the same name. Stephen Schwartz and Nina Paso adapted Mr. Terkel's book and added original music and lyrics from such noted songwriters as Susan Birkenhead, Craig Carnelia, Micki Grant, Mary Rodgers, Mr. Schwartz and James Taylor. Through connected vignettes of monologues and songs, this musical is a tribute to and recognition of everyone who works.

Mark E. Hopkins, the artistic/managing director of the Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre, will direct. He is seeking a multi-racial cast of one boy aged 9 to 12, six men and six women aged 18 to 55. A variety of types are needed, including a black woman gospel singer, an older black man with a scat-type voice and a strong young Hispanic man. Those auditioning are asked to prepare a dramatic ballad and may be asked to read from the script.

The auditions will be held at the Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre which is located in the Franklin Township Municipal Complex at 475 DeMott Lane (between Easton Avenue and Amwell Road) in the Somerset section of Franklin Township.

New Managing Director At George St. Playhouse

David Edelman has been appointed managing director of George Street Playhouse in New Brunswick.

OFF TO JAIL: Brian Russell is Toad and Omar Shawkat the Policeman in the Louisville Children's Theater production of "The Wind and the Willows." The company will present two performances of the children's classic on Saturday at 2 and 4 in Kelsey Theater on the West Windsor campus of Mercer County Community College.

Mr. Edelman, who will begin his duties full time in May, replaces Michael P. Gennaro, who is leaving the Playhouse for personal reasons. As managing director, Mr. Edelman will be responsible for the day-to-day running of the theater, overseeing the staff and working closely with the board of trustees and the marketing and development departments.

Mr. Edelman most recently served as associate producing director for the Whole Theatre in Montclair. He is a former president of the New Jersey Theatre Group and has served as an arts management consultant for arts organizations throughout the State.

Spanish Danee Theatre At N.J. State Museum

The New Jersey State Museum will present a performance of Spanish classical and flamenco dances by American Spanish Dance Theatre on Sunday at 1.

Formed in 1978, American Spanish Dance Theatre is comprised of five dancers and three musicians, under the direction of dancer/choreographer/teacher Andrea Del Conte. The repertory includes the choreography of Luis Montero and Jose Molina, both from Spain. Three New York seasons, the most recent at the Borough of Manhattan Community College Triplex, as well as year-round performances in the tri-state area, have established the company as a strong force in the Spanish dance world.

Tickets to the American Spanish Dance Theatre performance at the New Jersey State Museum are $4 at the door; $3.50 in advance. For tickets or more information, call 292-6310.

New Managing Director At Passage Theatre Co.

Passage Theatre Company has appointed Sonya Anne Monsen as its new managing director.

Ms. Monsen is a recent graduate of New York University's Tisch School of the Arts. McCowen Returns in 'St. Mark's Gospel'

By MEL GUSSOW

Alec McCowen's "St. Mark's Gospel" is a performance as revelation. Without theatrics, he tells the story of Christ as recounted by Mark. Though Mr. McCowen has given this solo performance innumerable times in the last two decades, his actor's art has kept his delivery extraordinarily fresh. The story is told every time as if for the first time.

His role is primarily that of reporter, filled with awe at the marvelous events and eager to transmit the Gospel to his listeners. This is not a Bible lesson or a sermon, but a one-man play, in which the actor becomes a conduit of genius. As Shakespeare was to John Gielgud (in his "Ages of Man" recital), St. Mark is to Mr. McCowen.

For his return appearance in the show in New York (a limited run that began last night at the Lamb's Theater), Mr. McCowen has grown a beard and now wears a comfortable sweater rather than a jacket. He looks older and seems more informal, but the performance has not in any sense mellowed through familiarity. If anything, he exudes an even greater empathy with his subject.

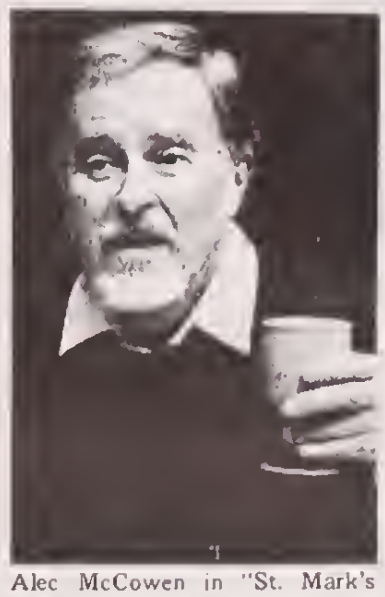
In his book, "Double Bill," in which he describes his generative process as an actor, Mr. McCowen says about Mark's version of the Gospel, "The events of a great tragic play lead us inexorably to the final catastrophe." Mark is a natural dramatist, but it is the actor's interpretation that brings the book to life on stage. He becomes Mark's creative collaborator, playing all the characters and, through acting, giving the Gospel atmospheric background as well as dramatic shape.



Alec McCowen in "St. Mark's Gospel" at the Lamb's Theater.

Parables and Miracles

ST. MARK'S GOSPEL, Alec McCowen performing the Gospel According to St. Mark. Lighting by Lloyd Sobel. Presented by Arthur Cantor. At the Lamb's Theater, 130 West 44th Street.

The tragedy is heightened as Mr. McCowen leads us gradually through Christ's days on earth. In his portrait, Jesus is a man before he is seen as a divinity, a man who can rise in anger and even personal irritation, as in his wrathful reaction to the fig tree that refuses to bear fruit.

The actor finds surprising humor within the narrative, partly through his mimicry of characters, but also through his presentation of parables and miracles. Miracles abound as winds are stilled, a blind man regains his sight, and a handful of loaves and fishes feeds a legion.

More than anything, it is the wonderment of the experience that is evoked. If at any moment the actor succumbed to histrionics, it would defeat his purpose. The excitement comes, as it must, from the words and the story, and when the most quoted lines are heard in context, they gain resonance.

The performance is self-directed. Mr. McCowen introduces the reading with a few humorous reflections on his long identification with his role, remarking that a theatergoer once asked him where she could find a script. His response: "In almost any hotel room." Then he places a copy of "St. Mark's Gospel" on the table on stage — "just in case." There is, of course, no need to consult it. The performance begins as a feat of memory and becomes an eloquent meeting of actor and text.

"Twelfth Night" to Open At Rutgers University

Shakespeare's Twelfth Night will open Friday at the Philip J. Levin Theater in Rutgers Arts Center, George Street at Route 18, New Brunswick. Directed by Harold Scott, the comedy will run April 6 through 8 and April 17 through 29. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays. Matinee performances are Sundays at 2 p.m. and there is a preview performance at 8 p.m. on Thursday. The theater is dark Mondays.

In a slight departure from the original play, this production takes place in the 1800s on the imaginary tropical island of Illyria. Costume designer Daniel lawson has dressed the cast in whites, creams and grays — pale colors that stand out against the lush tropical set.

Mr. Scott has directed at leading resident theaters across the country and in New York at Playwrights Horizons, Manhattan Theatre Club and the New Federal Theatre. His most recent Broadway show was Robeson. His production of Lorraine Hansberry's A Raisin in the Sun at the Kennedy Center won 10 NAACP National Theater Awards.

Tickets are $10, $9 for people 63 years and older and Rutgers faculty and staff, and $6 for Rutgers students. For information or to charge tickets by phone, call the Rutgers Arts ticket office, (201) 932-7511.

University Jazz Ensemble To Perform on Friday

The Princeton University Jazz Ensemble will present a Spring Showcase on Friday at 8 in Taplin Auditorium in Fine Hall on the Princeton University campus.

The concert will feature a variety of originally composed and arranged jazz, from bop to fusion, performed by groups of the Ensemble. Tickets cost $2 and may be purchased in advance at the Richardson Auditorium box office or at the door.

Composed entirely of students, the Princeton University Jazz Ensemble has played to enthusiastic audiences at every performance. This year's Ensemble includes two 19-piece big bands and two smaller combos. Two of these groups were recently offered bids to participate in the finals of down beat magazine's Musicfest, in Oakland, Calif.

The Ensemble also has plans to attend jazz festivals at Villanova and Cornell in the coming year, and has additional concerts scheduled for April and May.

Director Anthony D.J. Branker, in his inaugural season, brings a wealth of jazz knowledge to the Ensemble. He holds a full-time position as director of instrumental ensembles and instructor of music at Ursinus College, plays regularly with the quintet Bright Moments, and has received numerous fellowships and awards for music study and composition.

Met Opera Bass & NJSO In Broadway Favorites

The Metropolitan Opera basso Jerome Hines will join the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra conducted by Michael Pratt in a program of light classics and Broadway favorites Saturday at 8 in the War Memorial Theatre, Trenton.

The concert, which is part of the NJSO's Winter Pops Series, will also feature young singers who are fellows of Opera/Music Theatre International, an organization founded by Mr. Hines. The singers at this concert will be soprano Donna Maria Zapola, mezzo-soprano Eugenie Grunewald, and tenor Joseph Stango.

The program will include some of the best loved selections from opera and the Broadway stage, including "Micaela's Aria," the "Flower Song" and "Seguidille" from Carmen; "Impossible Dream" from Man of La Mancha; "Make Believe," "You Are Love," and "Ol' Man River" from Showboat; and "It's a Grand Night for Singing" from State Fair.

In addition, the NJSO will perform the overtures to Die Fledermaus by Strauss, and The Italian in Algiers by Rossini; and Mr. Hines will sing Saint-Saens' Danse Macabre and Vincent Youman's "Without a Song."

Mr. Hines is celebrating his 47th year in opera, including 41 consecutive seasons at the Met. A native of California who has lived in New Jersey for many years, he has sung at La Scala, the Bolshoi Opera, Bayreuth, Glyndebourne and at numerous other theaters and festivals in North and South America, Europe and Asia.

Tickets are $10, $18, $25. Student and senior citizen rush tickets may be purchased one-half hour before the performance at $5, subject to availability. For tickets and information call the NJSO box office at (201) 624-8203, or toll-free at 1-800-ALLEGRO, weekdays 9 to 3.

Chapel Choir to Sing Faure Requiem

The Princeton University Chapel Choir, conducted by Prof. Walter Nollner, will present its annual Milbank Concert on Sunday afternoon at 2 in the Princeton University Chapel. The concert is open to the public and there is no admission charge.

This year's work will be the Requiem by Gabriel Faure'. A work much beloved of choruses since its composition in the late 19th century, the Faure' Requiem will be performed in its entirety. The soloists will be Beverly Wilson, Michael Niggemann '90 and David Sanford GS, all members of the Chapel Choir. The orchestra will be composed of members of the Princeton University Orchestra and players from the Princeton community.

The Albert Goodsell Milbank and Elizabeth Milbank Anderson Memorial Concert has been an annual feature of the Choir's activity for more than 60 years.

a cappella choral group made up of hand-picked adult singers under the direction of John Bertalot, director of music at Trinity Church. Now in its sixth season, this group is rapidly gaining a reputation for its interesting repertoire and excellent performances.

The Princeton University Gospel Ensemble is an independent organization reformed in 1983 to spread the Gospel through song. Its repertoire includes contemporary Gospel songs, traditional church hymns and spirituals reflecting the variety of religious music that has developed from the Black churches of America.

The Rev. Dr. John A. Gaines' Pastors Choir of the El-Bethel Baptist Church in Trenton includes singers, musicians and volunteers of all ages who have been performing together for the past 20 years. The choir has sung in states as far away as Texas and Georgia.

The concert is sponsored by the Martin House Community for Justice Foundation which raises funds to provide housing, education and job training for the inner city poor of Trenton. Proceeds of the concert will go to the Martin House Learning Center.

The Center provides free after-school tutoring, high school equivalency programs (G.E.D.) and a Pre-School Program, as well as informal classes for special interest groups (i.e. art, sewing and music). It operates on the belief that education is the road to self-sufficiency.

Tickets are $25 per person and are available through the Richardson Hall box office at 258-5000.

Fortepianist to Perform At Westminster College

Malcolm Bilson, a leader in the revival of the late 18th-century piano for the performance of the classical piano literature will present a recital at Westminster Choir College on Wednesday, April 18, at 8 p.m. in Bristol Chapel. Soprano Julianne Baird will be the soloist.

Mr. Bilson will play four Impromptus, Opus 90 by Schubert and Schumann's Fantasiestucke, Opus 12 on an original instrument. Accompanied by Mr. Bilson, Ms. Baird will sing several Schubert lieder and rarely performed works by Niklas van Krufft.

Considered the world's foremost fortepianist, Mr. Bilson has presented solo recitals of the keyboard music of Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven and C.P.E. Bach in many musical centers in Europe and the United States, such as the Mostly Mozart Festival at Lincoln Center. He has toured Europe with the Academy of Ancient Music directed by Christopher Hogwood and in the United States with John Eliot Gardner and the English Baroque Soloists. He has made 19 recordings, including the complete Mozart fortepiano concertos.

Malcolm Bilson combines his international performance career with teaching. He is director of keyboard studies in the 18th-century historical performance practice doctoral program at Cornell University. In addition to the recital at Westminster Choir College, Mr. Bilson will teach a master class sponsored by the Hillman Foundation.

Miss Baird is one of early music's leading performers, recording artists and teachers. Her appearances as a soloist include the San Francisco Symphony, New York and Brooklyn Philharmonic Orchestras, the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra and the Spoleto USA. Her most recent recordings are a series of Bach Cantatas with Joshua Rifkin and the Bach Ensemble. Miss Baird was recently awarded a Rutgers Fellowship

Next to Last Concert In Beethoven Cycle Set

Princeton University concerts will present the Tokyo String Quartet Wednesday, April 11, at 8 in Richardson Auditorium, in Alexander Hall on the Princeton University campus. The program will be the penultimate in a cycle of six concerts devoted to the 16 string quartets of Ludwig van Beethoven.

The program begins with the late Quartet in E-flat Major, Opus 127, dedicated to Prince Nikolas Galitzin and written at the time that Beethoven completed his Ninth Symphony. The program concludes with the Quartet in B-flat Major with the Grosse Fuge, Opera 130/133, first performed in Vienna in 1826.

After the first performance, Beethoven sanctioned the removal of the fugal finale, had it issued separately as Opus 133, and then provided the quartet with a new, less radical finale. The revised version was heard on the November program.

Currently celebrating its 20th anniversary season, the Tokyo Quartet is recording the middle and late Beethoven String Quartets in Richardson Auditorium for RCA Red Seal. They are also recording all of Schubert's Quartets for RCA.

Although the series has been sold out by subscription since September, individual tickets may be available on the day of the concert from the Richardson box office at 258-5000. Tickets are priced at $20, $17, and $12. Obstructed view tickets are $7 and student tickets are $2 (with ID).

Telephone reservations may be made with Visa and MasterCard.

PLANNING LEAGUE LECTURE: New Jersey Symphony Orchestra League board members Janet Haring, left, and Sandy Smith, president of the Princeton/Mercer chapter, invite music lovers to a lecture on Dvorak by Alexander Carney Sunday at 4 at Pretty Brook Tennis Club in anticipation of the NJSO concert on April 21.

Pre-Concert Lecture Set by NJSO League

The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra League will present a pre-concert lecture Sunday by Dr. Alexander Carney. Entitled "Dvorak: A Tale of Two Countries," the lecture-demonstration will begin at 4 at Pretty Brook Tennis Club, Pretty Brook Road.

The presentation is open to all members of the NJSO League free of charge and to all other area music lovers for a $5 donation. The lecture will highlight what to listen for on Saturday, April 21, at 8 when Hugh Wolff will conduct the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra at the War Memorial Auditorium in Trenton. The concert will include Dvorak's Violin Concerto, Debussy's March Ecossaise sur un Theme Populaire, and Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 3, the "Scotch" Symphony.

The lecture will be followed by wine and refreshments and a brief annual meeting to elect next year's officers. For further information call Dina Robinson, 921-0133, or Sandy Smith, 921-0045.

Delaware River Consort To Perform Early Music

The Delaware River Consort, an a capella vocal quartet, will present a concert at the Old Barracks Museum in Trenton on Sunday, at 2.

The program, "Songs of a New Country," features vocal musical selections of the period 1790-1810. Folk hymns, fuguing tunes, and anthems by composer William Billings will be included. A wine and cheese reception will follow. Tickets are $8 per person.

The Consort has performed in the central New Jersey area since 1983. Its repertoire consists of secular and sacred music by American composers of the early Federalist period as well as folk songs from the Revolutionary era. For more information, call 396-1776.

Rutgers Orchestra Set For Concert Saturday

The Rutgers University Orchestra, under the direction of Jens Nygaard, will perform works by Mozart, Elgar and Saint-Saens Saturday at 8 in Nicholas Music Center of Rutgers Arts Center, George Street at Route 18, New Brunswick.

The Essex Quartet will be featured in Sir Edward Elgar's Introduction and Allegro for String Quartet and Orchestra, Op. 47. Also on the program are Mozart's Serenade No. 11 in E Flat Major, K. 375, and Saint-Saens' Symphony No. 2 in A Minor, Op. 55.

Tickets are $8; $7 for people 63 and older and Rutgers faculty and staff; and $3 for Rutgers students. For information or to charge tickets by phone, call the Rutgers Arts ticket office, (201) 932-7511.

Guitar Ensemble Set For Concert at College

The newly formed Trenton State Guitar Ensemble, will perform at Bray Recital Hall on the Trenton State College campus on Wednesday, April 11, at 8 p.m.

The ensemble, led by Robert Trent, will perform works by Praetorius, Manuel deFalla, Enrique Granados, Terry Riley, and Handel. The rest of the eight-member ensemble consists of music majors and minors attending the college and guitarists selected from the surrounding community.

A graduate of the Philadelphia College of Performing Arts and Trenton State College, Mr. Trent has just returned from a concert tour of the West Coast and has also recently performed in Italy. He has appeared at Tanglewood, and throughout South America and Germany.

Among other awards, Mr. Trent has won first prizes in the Webb National Guitar Competition, the Masterworks Music and Art Foundation young Artists Competition, and the Phil-

Violinist Isaac Stern And Baltimore Symphony

Violinist Isaac Stern will perform with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra on Friday at State Theatre, 19 Livingston Avenue, New Brunswick.

David Zinman will conduct the Adagio in E Major for Violin and Orchestra, K. 261 and the Rhondo in C Major for Violin and Orchestra, K. 371 by Mozart, and the Violin Concerto, L'Arbre des songes ("The Tree of Dreams"), by Henri Dutilleux. The program will also include Prokofiev's Symphony No. 5 in B-Flat Major, Opus 100.

Mr. Stern began his career more than 55 years ago in Sao Francisco and has been hailed as one of the foremost violinists of the century and honored with numerous awards, including the Kennedy Center Honors, the Albert Schweitzer Music Award, and Musical America's 1986 Musician of the Year.

Mr. Zinman, appointed music director in 1985, has brought the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra into the ranks of the world's premier ensembles. He has initiated ambitious tours and expanded performance series in Baltimore, including a series devoted to new and unusual music and a Saturday morning "Casual Concert" series with informal commentary by the conductor.

Some sections of the State Theatre are sold out, but good orchestra seats are still available. For tickets and information, call Ticket Central, daily, between noon and 6 at (201) 246-7469.

Orpheus Chamber Group Will Play at Rutgers

The Orpheus Chamber Orchestra with cellist Anner Bylsma concludes this year's Rutgers University Concert Series on Thursday at 8 p.m. in Nicholas Music Center, George Street at Route 18, New Brunswick.

Mr. Bylsma will perform Concerto for Violoncello and Orchestra in G Major by Antonio Vivaldi and Cello Concerto No. 1 in A Minor by Charles Camille Saint-Saens. The program, which will be repeated on April 7 at Carnegie Hall, also includes Symphony No. 74 in E Flat Major by Haydn and Divertimento Opus 86 by Richard Strauss.

Tickets are $18, $17 for people 63 and over and Rutgers faculty and staff, and $3 for Rutgers students. For information or to charge tickets by phone, call the Rutgers arts ticket office (201) 932-7511.

Award to Sound Track

The soundtrack to "Classical Caravan," the New Jersey Network's one-hour documentary of the Chamber Symphony of Princeton's tour to Egypt and Jordan under music director Mark Laycock, has won an Emmy for outstanding audio.

"Classical Caravan" has also been selected as a finalist in the American Film and Video Festival to be held in San Francisco in June.

For further information call the Chamber Symphony office at 497-0020.

Far Eastern Galleries To Open at Museum

On Saturday, April 28, The Princeton University Art Museum will open the newly designed galleries for its collection of Far Eastern art. To mark the occasion, a scholarly symposium will be held in 101 McCormick Hall, adjacent to the entrance of the museum. There will be two speakers in the morning, a break for lunch, and three speakers in the afternoon.

The symposium is open to the public and free of charge. There will be a reception from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Museum sponsored by the Friends of The Art Museum for the membership, symposium participants, and guests.

The Far Eastern collection consists of 3,460 works of art from three major cultures: Chinese, Japanese, and Indian. The collection was first formed in the 1920s and has been expanding since the 1940s, first under Prof. George Rowley and then Prof. Wen C. Fong.

The development of the collection has been marked by several important acquisitions and generous donations: The J. Lionberger Davis, Class of 1990, collection, the Carl Otto Gallery, and a member of the Advisory Council of the Art Department of Mount Holyoke College.

Museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday 1 to 5 p.m. The museum is closed Mondays, major holidays, and the month of August and the Museum shop closes at 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Art from Princeton To Be Seen in USSR

Among 92 artists whose works are represented in the "TAWA in the USSR Exhibition" being sent to Moscow in August by the Trenton Artists Workshop Association (TAWA) are 13 living in Princeton: Anita Bernarde, Judith Brodsky, Heidi Cheris, James Colavita, Jane Eccles, Jamie Fuller, Janet Kozachek, Sahoko Okabayashi, Sara Soffer, Marie Sturken, Martha Vaughn, Idaherma Williams, and Katherine S. Wood. Ms. Brodsky and Mr. Colavita are also among the six artists being sent by TAWA for a one-month visit to the Soviet Union.

TAWA is holding a fundraiser/auction from 1 to 5 p.m. on April 22 at Educational Testing Service. An auction will be held April 21 at 4 p.m. Tickets for the event are $20.

For information and/or tickets call TAWA at 695-8796.

Spring Auction to Benefit Int'l Artists' Exchange

A gala art auction and spring celebration to benefit the Trenton Artists Workshop Association's international artists' exchange with the Soviet Union will take place at 1 p.m. on Sunday, April 22, in Conant Hall, Educational Testing Service, Rosedale Road. Tickets are $20.

The event will include an elaborate buffet of Russian delicacies, authentic Russian entertainment, and the opportunity to purchase works by such artists as Ben Shahn, B.J.O. Nordfelt, Jacob Landau, Marge Chavoosian, Tom Malloy, Mel Leipzig, James Colivita, Judith Brodsky, and others.

Proceeds will assist the organization of professional artists to send 96 works of art to Moscow for a July exhibit. Artists featured in the traveling exhibit include Tom Malloy, Bernarda Bryson Shahn, Leon Bible, Marguerite Doernbach, Diana Kurz, and Mel Leipzig. A Soviet-sponsored exhibit of Russian artists will be held simultaneously at the Trenton City Museum in Cadwalader Park.

Additionally, six artists representing the Trenton Artist Workshop Association will visit the Soviet Union for the month of August. They are sculptor James Colivita and printmaker Judith Brodsky of Princeton, photographer Lou Draper of Trenton, printmaker Robert Muller of Roosevelt, graphic artist Anne Bobo of East Windsor, and painter Joy Barth of Skillman.

For tickets to the celebration or more information, call Gary Saretzky at 734-5744.

Spring Art Workshops For Children Grades 1-6

Susan Kriegman will offer an eight-week art workshop for children in grades one to six at the Arts Council beginning April 23. The emphasis will be on drawing and design, and the series is especially recommended for artistically gifted children.

A new project will be introduced in each class, along with an explanation of new skills, concepts and materials.

Class size is limited to ten. For more information or to register call Ms. Kriegman at 275-6553 by April 16.

Exhibits

Hand colored prints by Sergio Bonotto, 48 Clover Lane, will be on exhibit at the Montgomery National Bank, Route 518, Rocky Hill, during the month of April. The prints are all limited edition.

Some of the dozen area scenes depicted are in Princeton, Montgomery Township, Rocky Hill, Kingston, and Hopewell. Most of the pen-and-ink cards have historical information on their backs.

Thirty-seven members of Artworks are being featured in the second annual juried members show at Artworks/Trenton. The show will open with a reception on Friday from 5 to 7:30 p.m. and will continue

Clubs and Organizations

EASTER AND MOTHER'S DAY DISPLAYS will highlight the Garden Club of Princeton's French Market, which will open Friday, April 13, from 8 to 11 a.m. at the park at Mercer and Nassau Streets, in front of TOWN TOPICS. Cut flowers, container plants, and flats will be available each week.

A program of chamber and solo music will be performed by Princeton High School students at the April 12 meeting of the American Association of Retired Persons. Under the direction of Robert Loughran, orchestral director at the high school, the string quartet with flute and piano will present a program of Bach and Mozart selections.

The meeting will start at 2 p.m. at All Saints' Church. The public is welcome. There is no charge for admission, and refreshments will be served following the meeting.

For further information, call John Bowker at 799-0725.

During the month of April, the Princeton Chess Club will hold its second annual club championship tournament. Depending on the number of entrants, the tournament will consist of four to five rounds, with each round being played during regular club meetings on Thursday night from 7 to 11 at Bramwell House of the YWCA.

The tournament will open on April 12, with the second, third, fourth and (if necessary) fifth rounds falling on April 19, April 26, May 3, and May 10, respectively.

For more information, call Ned Walthall at 734-5390, or 924-9088 after 5 p.m.

"Handling the Stress of the Creative Woman" will be the subject of a talk by Princeton Psychotherapist Pat Carrington at the meeting of the National League of American Pen Women, on Thursday, April 12, at 8 p.m. at the Arts Council building.

A specialist in stress management, Dr. Carrington is a psychologist and psychotherapist and a former member of the psychology faculty of Princeton University for 11 years. Presently she is associate clinical professor of psychiatry at UMDNJ/Robert Wood Johnson Medical School.

The public is welcome. For further information on programs or membership, call Doris Moffatt, 882-6718.

Robert N. Wilentz, chief justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, will address the members of the Mercer County Bar Association at their general membership meeting on April 18, at Good Time Charley's in Kingston.

Chief Justice Wilentz was appointed to the Supreme Court by Governor Brendon Byrne in 1979, after more than a quarter of a century as an active private practitioner, and two terms as a member of the New Jersey General Assembly. Since his appointment, the Chief Justice's tenure has been marked by the strong, if controversial, administration of the courts, and by a continuation of the New Jersey Supreme Court's status in the nation as one of the leading appellate courts.

Mr. Wilentz has authored such weel-known decisions as Mt. Laurel II, the "Baby M" case, and tbe Bergenwald and Ramseur death penalty cases.

The Chief Justice's remarks, which will be on a topic of his own choosing, will be followed by a question-and-answer period.

Seating is limited and reservations are needed. For reservations, call 989-8880.

"Europe in the 1990's: Economics and Politics" will be the subject of a presentation by Prof. William H. Branson to 55 PLUS on Wednesday, April 18, at 10 a.m. at the Jewish Center.

Dr. Branson, a graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, became professor of economics and international affairs at Princeton University in 1972. He has attained an international reputation in the field of economics, economic development, and public finance.

The formal part of the meeting will start after a brief social period. All men in the area are invited.

James R. Coldren, a bagpipe enthusiast and collector who published the first index of printed bagpipe music, will "pipe them in" at the next meeting of the Princeton Branch of the English-Speaking Union on Sunday, at 3 p.m.

He will help welcome Mona Tennant McLeod, who has just arrived in the United States from Scotland for a speaking tour. A member of the faculty of Edinburgh University, her subject will be "Scottish History and Culture."

The public is invited. Nonmembers are asked to make a donation of $3.

The meeting will take place at the Center for Theological Inquiry, 50 Stockton Street. For further information, call 924-7045.

The Princeton Photography Club will meet Wednesday, April 11, at 8 p.m. at the Arts Council building for a club competition and critique.

Each member may submit one print or slide only. Prints are to be matted and must be at least 8x10 inches.

The club's spring show will continue on view at the Tucker Anthony Gallery, 100 Nassau Street, through the month of April.

For further information, call Virginia McAlinden at 466-1185.

The Mercer County Adult and Adolescent Epilepsy Support Groups will meet April 11 at 7:30 p.m. at Lawrenceville Library, 2751 Brunswick Pike.

For further information, call Laura Lowich at the Epilepsy Foundation of New Jersey, 392-4900.

Tiger Laxmen Now Ranked 10th in Nation After Knocking Off Third-Ranked Rutgers

Isn't March supposed to come in like a lion and go out like a lamb? Well it seems Mother Nature could use a lesson in zoology, as rain and snow wreaked havoc on a number of Princeton University contests last weekend.

Wet weather washed out the baseball team's doubleheader on Saturday, as well as the softball team's appearance in the University of Connecticut's Husky Invitational Tournament. But not even the weather could dampen the spirits of the men's lacrosse team, which knocked off third-ranked Rutgers and now owns the t0th ranking in the nation.

The laxmen's victory was their fifth in a row since their opening-day loss and their second this year against a team ranked in the top ten nationally. Never trailing against Rutgers, the Tigers built a 6-1 lead late in the first half and cruised to the t2-7 victory.

The laxwomen were not as fortunate. They fell, 9-4, to Ivy power Harvard in Cambridge, Mass., on Sunday, after disposing of Lafayette rather convincingly, 13-6, last Wednesday.

The inclement weather forced the baseball team to spend Saturday in front of the TV sets watching the NCAA basketball games, instead of playing a doubleheader against Hartford. Princeton did play last Tuesday, however, defeating Lehigh, 11-2. It was the Tigers' first home game after going 7-5 on their spring break tour of the Carolinas.

Lehigh was the sole opponent for the softball team last week as well, and the Engineers met a fate similar to that of their baseball counterparts. Princeton swept a doubleheader, 3-0 and 9-0, to boost its season mark to 5-6. Last weekend's Husky Invitational wns rnined out and will not be made up.

Rain forced the women's tennis tenin (2-0 Ivy) to use the indoor courts at Jadwin, hut the Tigers certainly didn't complain. The squad opened the Ivy League season with hack-to-hack 8-1 druhhings of Columhia and Penn last weekend. Senior Diana Gardner, ranked 37th among United States collegians, lost only two games combined in a pair of singles matches.

The men's tennis team (3-4, 1-0 Ivy) netted a pair of blowout victories as well. Thursday at the Lenz Center, the Tigers whitewashed Temple, 9-0. On Saturdny, Penn fell victim to the Tiger onslaught, 8-1, in Philadelphia.

SPORTS

Crew In Georgia

The men's crew teams got a head start on the golf throng as they competed at the Augusta Invitational in Augusta, Ga., over the weekend. The heavyweights emerged victorious with a 5.2-second win in the finals over Syracuse. Earlicr in the week, the heavies had sunk Navy In a pair of races in Annapolis, Md.

The lightweights made it to the final round at Augusta as well, but were unable to capture the green jacket, finishing third behind Dartmouth and champion Harvard. The women's crew team downed Rutgers by four boat lengths on Saturday at Lake Carnegie to improve its record to 2-0.

The men's track team was narrowly beaten by Penn in its Ivy League opener at Palmer Stadium Saturday, 81-80. To avoid a loss, the Tigers needed a sweep of the last event, the discus. But Penn managed to grab third place in the event and thus hang on for the tight victory. Rain forced the cancellation of the women's meet at Penn.

Just one month ago, the men's lacrosse team was drubbed by third-ranked Johns Hopkins, 20-8. Critics said that Bill Tierney's squad was overrated and overconfident. Well, the Tigers were given another chance against a third-ranked squad last Saturday, and they put clamps on their critics' mouths with a 12-7 triumph over Rutgers in Piscataway. The victory earned the Tigers the 10th spot in the national lacrosse poll released Monday.

Early Lead Holds

Princeton jumped out to an early 6-1 lead against the stunned hosts, who had beaten Johns Hopkins earlier in the season. Junior Chris McHugh had two of the goals en route to an eventual hat trick. The Scarlet Knights, however, battled back, narrowing the gap to 6-4 early in the second half.

But the Tigers struck back in a key sequence midway through the third quarter. With Rutgers shorthanded after a slashing call, Princeton senior Mark Ames fired home the second of his two goals to increase the lead to three. Just 16 seconds later, McHugh completed his hat trick to make the score 8-4. The teams traded goals the rest of the way.

Perhaps the brightest light in the team's celestial play has heen that of sophomore goalie Jim Ardrey. Goaltending was the big question mark on this team entering the season, but Ardrey, with 10 saves Saturday, solidified his hold on the starting job. Ardrey had come off the bench to play well against Bucknell on March 10, nnd has maintained that high level in the games since.

Ardrey and the Tigers will put their national ranking on the line this week when they face second-ranked Yale in their Ivy League opener at Finney Field. The Elis downed Cornell, previously ranked 11th in the country, 20-8, last weekend.

Laxwamen Lose to Harvard

There's no question that the women's lacrosse program has mnde immense strides in recent years, but it seems that Harvard has yet to recognize those developments. On Sunday the sixth-ranked Tigers fell to the second-ranked Crimson, 9-4, in Cambridge, Mass. Princeton has not beaten Harvard since 1983, including last year's 7-5 national semifinal loss.

Sophomore Gillian Thomson had two goals to lead the Tigers. Seniors Jill Forney and Eleanor Tydings notched the other two. The loss was the first of the year for the Orange and Black, who saw their record drop to 3-1.

Last Wednesday, the laxwomen demolished Lafayette on the road, 13-6. Six different players scored for Princeton, led by the efforts of sophomore Anne Sherwood, who tallied four times with four assists. Senior Sara Slattery also had four goals for the Tigers, who owned a 9-2 lead at halftime. Sophomore goalie Leila Saddic turned in a remarkable performance between the posts, stopping 15 Leopard shots.

The baseball team's doubleheader with Hartford was postponed and has not yet been rescheduled. The Tigers (8-5) did host a contest last Tuesday, however, steamrolling over Lehigh, 11-2. Freshman standout Jeff Schweitzer went 5-for-5 with two RBIs. Senior captain Matt Noone (1-2) pitched magnificently, striking out ten and walking one over eight innings. Sophomore Robert McCutchan blanked the Engineers in the ninth.

With the game scoreless in the second, Princeton exploded for eight runs off Lehigh's Kirk Demyan. Sophomore Sean Sullivan and senior Brad Remig each had two-run doubles during the outburst. The Tigers added another run in the fifth and two more in the eighth, while the Engineers could muster only single runs in the third and eighth innings.

Prospect Good for Season

With the decisive win, Tom O'Connell's squad has now outscored its last two opponents by a 25-6 count and has won three straight. The Tiger lineup, boosted by the addition of Schweitzer and fellow freshman Johnny Rivers, ranks as one of the most potent lineups in the EIBL, in which Princeton has a definite chance to finish first this year. The EIBL season will begin for the Tigers this weekend, when they host a pair of twinbills against Army and Columbia at Clarke Field.

Old-fashioned New England winter weather blanketed Storrs, Conn., with a layer of snow, rendering the softball team's trip to the Husky Invitational a meaningless venture. Last Tuesday, though, Princeton put its dreary 3-6 spring break record behind and swept a twinbill from Lehigh, 3-0 and 9-0, on 1895 Field.

In the opener, the Tigers jumped out to a 2-0 third inning lead on an RBI single by senior tri-captain Steff Bender and an RBI bunt by sophomore Debbie Hillenbrand. That output was more than enough for junior hurler Christie Susko, who allowed just three hits in evening her record at 2-2.

Cindy Cohen's troops kept the ball rolling in the nightcap. Riding the three-hit pitching of rookie Stacie Bonner and junior Lori Dickerson, Princeton dumped Lehigh, 9-0. Rallies in the first and third innings keyed the Tiger onslaught, which was led by Bender's two RBIs.

Following this Saturday's home twinbill with Providence, Princeton will begin its quest for an eighth straight Ivy League crown with Sunday's pair against Harvard at 1895 Field. This may be the toughest year yet for the Tigers, though. Pitching phenom Dawn Roberts, only a junior, decided not to play this year, leaving Princeton with few pitchers with any collegiate mound experience. But the Orange and Black's talent around the rest of the diamond is outstanding, and they are still the favorite to repeat as champions.

Wednesday Is Start For PHS Track Teams

"It will be a lot tougher but we are still setting our goals high," said Princeton High associate track coach Becky Mackey last week, just days before the Little Tigers were set to begin defense of their Valley Division titles in the Colonial Valley Conference.

The PHS boys' team will open this Wednesday against Hopewell Valley High in Pennington; the girls will begin the same day against Hopewell on the West Windsor track. Both will compete in the annual Mercer County Relays on Saturday at Trenton High. The boys' competition begins in the morning, the girls' in the afternoon.

Last spring, the Little Tiger boys finished 11-1, and the girls 12-1, in capturing the Valley Division honors. Both squads lost key performers to graduation, however, which is why Mackey says it will be tough for the Little Tigers to repeat. The boys lost two outstanding distance runners, Jerod Neas and Rian Bogle, the area's top hurdler, Wagner Marseille, middle distance runner Dylan Penningroth, and Jason Harding and Ken Haag in the field events.

Among the girls, graduation claimed Karen Swartz, Mercer County's 1600 meter champion, Caty Willard, the county's 800 meter titlist and hurdler and high jumper Julie Nelson. But the Little Tigers are not ready to throw in the towel yet. Far from it.

Among its assets, PHS has a number of veteran performers returning and a crackerjack coaching staff headed by Marc Anderson. Anderson, who has been guiding the Blue and White for two decades, coaches the distance runners and pole vaulters. Associate coach Mackey works with the sprinters and hurdlers for both teams. She describes Anderson as the ablest, most dedicated coach she has ever served under.

Greg Hand is in charge of all throwers on both squads, while

72 YEARS EXPERIENCE: The Hun School baseball coaching staff has nearly three-quarters of a century in experience. Head coach Bill McQuade is starting his 20th year this spring, while assistant Bill Stout (left) has 16 and Lou Watts has 36 years in the game.

Yvette Best's domain is the high jumpers. Hannah Herman was the head coach last year at West Windsor and first worked at PHS with the winter track team. This is her first opportunity to help with spring track where she assist in coaching the distance runners and long jumpers. "She did an excellent job this winter," said Mackey.

Anderson acknowledges that the Little Tiger boys do not have the depth and outstanding individuals of past teams and that this year's squad, if it hopes to fend off challengers, will have to keep free from injuries. With the exception of Doug Bollender and Matt Pickens, the distance runners will be young and inexperienced.

Versatile Aaron Burt should be one of the leading point-getters this spring and will be the top high jumper and quarter-miler. He is a senior. Will Dickerson will lean his 240 pounds into the discus and shot put, Vandyke Grant will throw the javelin and discus and Todd Marrow is a vaulter. All are seniors.

Brian Williams will run the hurdles again and Vance Liverman returns to compete in the long jump and hurdles. Those two, and Davy Kahn and Nixson Grant, will try to garner points in the sprint events. Idris Magette, who broke the county record in the 400 as a freshman last year, is another that Anderson will be depending on to keep the Little Tigers, whose only loss last year was to unbeaten Trenton High, competitive.

Ringland Returns

Senior Kesti Ringland, the defending county 100 and 200 sprint champion, heads the list of those returning on the girls' team. Jennifer Wolinetz and Nicole Klein are slotted for the quarter-mile with Klein also competing in the long jump.

Lynn Davies and Andrea Gonzalez-Lavin run the mile and two-mile, sophomore Cara Boyles, a new runner this winter, has potential in the half-mile, says Mackey, and Heather Donlan will compete in the intermediate hurdles and "anything up to a half-mile."

Guhy Kachur is a tripleeontender in the 100, 200 and long jump, seninr Katie Berry has returned to the sport after a year's absence, and senior Mariquita Gilfillan has mnved up to the half-mile from the 400.

At the npposite end of the spectrum is freshman Ailey Penningroth, who was second in the county this winter in the shot as a freshman. She is ulso a threat in the low and IM hurdles. "She's very talented," said Mackey.

In the field events, Mackey is counting on junior Heidi Applegate In the discus and shot, Ruth Williams in the same two events and the pnle vault, and senior Angela Bryant. Bryant, reports Mackey, "has a lot of potential" in both the shot and discus.

Three underclassmen who are expected to contribute are freshman Myke Drnyer, discus and half-mile, sophomore Marcie Procaccini, javelin and Cathy Nenger, sprints and long jump.

PHS Boys, Girls Victors In First Lacrosse Games

The Princeton High boys' and girls' lacrosse teams each opened their seasons Monday with vietnries. The boys defeated Columbia, 9-6, while the girls handled visiting Morristown, 13-6.

Next, in three home games in five days, the boys will host Hun School on Thursday at 3:45, Lawrenceville School on Saturday at 2 and newcomer East Mamuel High of Denver on Monday at 3.

The Little Tiger girls will be home for two games, starting with a Friday contest against Montelair and following with a Monday contest against Chatham. Both will start at 4

Too Much Soderberg

Sonya Soderberg penetrated the Morristown defense for five goals Monday to lead the Princeton High girls to victory. Elise Wilson, Alisa MacNeille and Sarah Willard each contributed a pair of goals, as PHS overcame a shaky start to build a 7-3 halftime lead.

Two PHS veterans, Samantha Skey and Piper Darley, added single goals.

Passing and possession — Princeton's edge in both phases was the key ingredient in the win, in the view of PHS coach Joyce Jones.

"Possession is the name of the game and when we worked hard it showed up in possession," said Jones. She also cited the team's passing and midfield hall control and transition play.

PHS goalie Joan Sullivan had nine saves while Laura Soward had three for the visiting Colonials. Sullivan admitted she was nervous at the start but near the end of the first half she came up with some outstanding play in goal that frustrated

In the 13-14 age group, Megan Kull placed first in the 100-yard backstroke with 1:11.82 and fourth in the 200-yard backstroke. Megan swam the 500-yard freestyle for the first time and scored personal best times in the 200-yard free and the 100-yard breast.

Peter Geel led the 10-and-under boys with a first place in the 50-yard backstroke in 38.13. Peter also scored personal best times in the 50-yard free and 100-yard breaststroke. Jared Baker swam personal bests in the 100-yard free and the 100-yard breaststroke.

This Isn't The Only House
That Can Lower Your Taxes.

Before you look to Washington for a tax deduction, look in your own back yard.

With a New Jersey National Bank Home Equity Loan, the house you live in can cut your tax bill without so much as a filibuster. Because the interest you pay may be 100% tax deductible. Not 20%. Not 10%. Which makes it the smartest way to restructure your debt.

If you want to manage your taxes better next year, manage your money better now. Consider lowering your monthly payment by paying off your high interest charge cards and loans with a NJNB Home Equity Loan. Or ask about personal loans at slightly higher rates. Call 1-800-542-5626, ext. 124, weekdays 8:30am-8:30pm, Saturdays 10:00am to 2:00pm, or stop by any branch. Because the one house you can count on to lower your taxes is your own.

Re-Zoning

he wished there were more time to work on the details. For a time, as the clock moved steadily toward midnight, it looked as though the matter might be continued until another night.

However, his motion to continue was defeated and replaced by a motion by Mayor Litvack, seconded by Mrs. Marchand, to adopt the ordinance. Mrs. Litvack said the ordinance wasn't perfect, and she too would have liked time to refine it, but she said she had been through the downzoning of the office-research zone which occurred in stages.

Traffic and Parking

After the vote she and the other members of Committee agreed that the issues that had been raised, particularly those of traffic and parking, should be addressed at some point in the future. There were those who cited increased traffic and parking problems as the primary reason for changing the existing regulations in the hopes of preventing conversions to business use, which would bring in more traffic.

Others said that Witherspoon was a major artery between Route 206 and Nassau Street, the primary access to the hospital, the library and the central business district. The existing B-1 zone and the few conversions of residences to business use would not contribute significantly to the already heavy traffic, these people said.

Another issue centered on the bulk regulations under the existing zoning and those under the proposed ordinance. There were those who said that the proposed bulk regulations would create non-conforming structures among the existing residences and businesses. This would impose a hardship for both, inasmuch as a variance would be required for any alteration to the structure.

Others called the bulk regulations "unworkable" and "undoable." One property-owner challenged the professional planner Duggan Kimball's arithmetic in arriving at the various setback and minimum lot size requirements. Mr. Kimball defended the standards as being "reasonable" — more reasonable in fact than existing standards — and accurately reflecting what currently exists.

One attorney for a property owner challenged the wording of the proposed ordinance, which, as he read it, meant exactly the opposite of what it was intended to mean. Some speakers said that lower Witherspoon Street had actually been improved over the years by property owners, but they said if the zoning were changed, the neighborhood would deteriorate again because there wouldn't be the incentive to maintain buildings for future resale.

Against the onslaught of negative comment about the proposed ordinance, the Planning Board's professional planner, chairman and attorney each made a valiant effort to salvage it. Allen Porter, the attorney, remarked that all the speakers, whether for or against the ordinance, had essentially been saying, "We like what we have," on lower Witherspoon Street.

He told Committee it would either be re-enacting the existing B-1 ordinance or adopting the proposed change. "You have to think what the two ordinances permit, not what the B-1 has produced," he said. The proposed B-R zone was intended to "encapsulate" the type of development, the mixture of units, now existing along lower Witherspoon Street, whereas the schedule of regulations in the B-1 zone would encourage "destruction, consolidation of lots and decked parking."

Is the Housing Affordable?

Most people seemed to agree that preserving "affordable" housing was not the cogent reason for changing the zoning, as originally thought, because the housing is now beyond the reach of low income families, either to buy or to rent. But Mr. Kimball said that unaffordable as housing appears to be in the area, it is among the most affordable in Princeton, "an endangered but important resource."

The conversion of 311 Witherspoon Street to a dental office with residence above was held up by the planner as a model of what the proposed ordinance would encourage. On the other hand Planning Board Chairman Margen Penick said that, under the B-1 regulations, the most likely thing to happen would be a "medical strip zone." It was also pointed out that this conversion had taken place under the existing B-1 ordinance.

Most of the audience stayed to the very end. A persuasive argument for both Mr. Woodbridge and Mr. Godfrey was the fact that so many property owners in the zone were opposed to the change. "I think we should consider that all the people this is supposed to help are opposed," Mr. Godfrey remarked.

Maiocco to Leave

Princeton Regional Assistant Superintendent of Schools Donald Maiocco has resigned his $80,290-a-year post, effective June 30, to become superintendent of the Naatucket, Mass., public schools.

Mr. Maiocco has been with the Princeton schools for almost three years. He will start his new job July 1.

Spring Plowing to Start At Living History Farm

On Saturday the public can participate in spring plowing at Howell Living History Farm by joining the farmers as they "walk off lands," check soil conditions, and begin to plow.

The day of activities includes the field program (soil conditions permitting) and wagon tours to the fields, where corn, oats, wheat and hay crops will soon be sown. The program is offered continuously from 11 to 3. Children can participate in the craft program, "egg carton gardens," from 11 to 3. There is a one dollar materials' fee.

Howell Farm is located on Valley Road, just off Route 29, in Hopewell Township.

The U-Store Offers the Best in Educational Guides: How the Military Will Help You Pay for College. Don M. Betterton. Peterson's Guides, paperbound, $9.95.

The author, who is the Director of Financial Aid at Princeton University, has filled a long-standing need for information on the military's billion-dollar tuition support programs. Many eligible students fail to take advantage of the extensive financial aid available from the military simply because they are unaware of how easily they may qualify. This guide covers: Scholarships for graduating high school seniors going directly into college; Appointments to the service academies; Scholarships and college-credit programs for those on active duty. There are even programs for students already in college which have no military requirements during the academic year, and pay up to $1200 a month! In addition, the book lists all the colleges with Army, Navy, and Air Force ROTC units. All in all, $9.95 spent on this book will be money well invested.

Chamber Sets Forum With Princeton Officials

The Princeton Business Association, a division of the Princeton Area Chamber of Commerce, will host an open forum with the Mayors of Princeton Borough and Township on Wednesday, April 11.

Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, Borough Council President Marvin Reed, and Township Mayor Kate Litvack will discuss "Issues Concerning Princeton Borough and Princeton Township."

Scheduled for 5:30 p.m. at the Nassau Inn, this forum will offer business people and concerned citizens an opportunity to communicate face-to-face with their municipal leaders. The cost of the forum is $5 per person, and it is open to the public. Guaranteed reservations can be made by calling the Chamber office at 520-1776.

Approval Is Given To Carnegie Buildings

The Hillier Group has received West Windsor Board approval for three new office buildings at Carnegie Center, Route 1. The Landis group and Educational Testing Service will occupy the buildings upon completion.

The buildings will feature a design that complements existing buildings in the 540-acre complex. The ETS project also includes parking facilities for 1270 cars. Two parking decks and a grade-level parking area will be constructed adjacent to the buildings.

Construction of the first two buildings is scheduled for completion in the summer of 1991. The third will be completed approximately one year later.

The 400,000 square-foot, three- and four-story buildings will house approximately 1500 ETS employees, primarily in general office space. Organized around a central courtyard and greenway that serves as a link to the remainder of Carnegie Center, the ETS buildings will be connected by a skylit, covered walkway.

Area Chamber Plans Annual Chamber Day

The Princeton Area Chamber of Commerce will hold its tenth annual Chamber Day, Thursday at Scanticon-Princeton from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The day will begin with a new program, "Media Break," a one-hour segment that will give business people an opportunity to interact with business editors and reporters from the various media.

At 11, the business show will begin. Nearly 50 businesses will exhibit a variety of products and services in a trade-show format.

The general membership luncheon will take place from 11:30 to 1:30. The cost is $17 per person for members, $25 for nonmembers.

Chamber Day will wind up in the early evening with a business card reception. This is free to chamber members, and $10 for nonmembers. It will conclude at 7.

OBITUARIES

Henry D. Hecksher, a former Central Intelligence Agency officer, died March 28 at Princeton Medical Center. He was 79 and lived in Princeton.

Mr. Hecksher was born in Hamburg, Germany and was a lawyer and a judge there before emigrating to the United States via London in 1938. He joined the U.S. Army, rising to the rank of captain. He took part in the invasion of Normandy, saw action in five major World War II battles and was wounded in Antwerp.

He became an intelligence officer with the Army and interrogated some of the top Nazi leaders, including Julius Streicher. He joined the Office of Strategic Services and in 1946 became head of its counterintelligence section in Berlin. He remained with the agency when it became the Central Intelligence Agency and later served with the State Department in Laos, Indonesia, Japan and Chile.

Mr. Hecksher was the C.I.A. station chief in Santiago, Chile, during the time the agency sought to prevent the election of Salvador Allende Gossens as president. He retired in 1971.

He is survived by a brother, William S. Heckscher of Princeton; and three nieces, Diana Mitchell of England, Katherine M. Heckscher of Amsterdam, Holland, and Charlotte A. Heckscher of Lambertville.

The service was private. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society, 652 Whitehead Road, Trenton 08648.

Lilly M. Pancoast, 84, died March 29 at her daughter's home in West Windsor. Born in Hopewell, she was a lifelong Hopewell resident before moving to West Windsor 20 years ago.

Mrs. Pancoast was employed by the former Rockwell Manufacturing Co. of Hopewell. She was a former member of the Hopewell Presbyterian Church and a past member of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Hopewell Fire Department.

The Rev. Juan M. Lopez, died March 22 in Fort Myers, Fla. at the age of 91.

Mr. Lopez attended Princeton University with the Class of 1922 and for 20 years managed the book department at the Princeton University Store. In 1942 he volunteered for service in the U.S. Navy and was assigned to Naval Intelligence. He served until 1945, retiring with the rank of lieutenant commander. After the war, he worked as liaison between the State Department and the Veterans Administration.

In 1949 he decided to enter the ministry and attended Columbia University and General Theological Seminary in New York City. He was ordained a deacon in 1952 and a priest in 1953 at Trinity Church, Princeton. He served as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Pitman for 13 years. After retiring, he moved to Fort Myers, Fla., and assisted at St. Hilary's Episcopal Church for eight years.

In 1975 Mr. Lopez helped start St. John's, a mission church on Pine Island, Fla. He was instrumental in leading the mission to build an all-purpose church building. He retired as missioner emeritus at the age of 82 and moved to a retirement community in 1986 in Fort Myers after the death of his wife.

Husband of the late Annette Bayles Lopez, who was originally from Princeton, he is survived by two brothers, Carlos M. Lopez of Trenton, and Silvio H. Lopez of Passa-Grille, Fla., and Lewes, Del.

A Requiem Eucharist was celebrated at St. Hilary's Church, Fort Myers. A memorial service will be held Thursday at 11:30 at Trinity Church, Princeton. Burial will be in Princeton Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, donations may be sent to St. John's Episcopal Church, Pine Island, Fla. 33956.

Unification Church Opens Office Here

A student branch of the Unification Church has opened an office at 66 Witherspoon Street.

The branch, known as The Collegiate Association for the Research of Principles, or CARP, will be directed by the Rev. Robert Beehe, a Princeton University alumnus. The Unification Church was founded by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon, who claims to be the second coming of the Messiah. Its aggressive recruitment among young people, the tactics it reportedly uses to hold members, and the secrecy with which it operates has earned it the reputation of being a cult and its followers the appellation "Moonies."

A Princeton couple, Pat and Maurice Harding, say their 20-year-old son Justin "disappeared" last October from a Palmer Square street corner after being recruited by the church. The hardings did not know their son's whereabouts for three weeks, until he finally called from California. It was not until December that he told them he was with the Unification Church.

They flew out to San Francisco to try to persuade him to come back and return to college, and say they were not allowed to talk to him alone. When they learned that the church would be trying to set up a campus ministry at Princeton, they wrote letters to Dean of the Chapel Joseph Williamson urging him to oppose the effort.

The Hardings stationed themselves outside the CARP office during the open house the group held last Sunday to intercept any students who might come out of curiosity. However, no students came.

The Unification Church has not yet applied for campus ministry status. Mr. Beebe has said he wants to get acquainted with students and learn what's going on on campus these days before he applies. He was an economics major at Princeton and completed a master of divinity degree at a Unification Theological Seminary.

He served as assistant pastor of the Unification Church of Manhattan for three years and was pastor of the Unification Church in Denver, Col. until last December.

A press release from the Unification Church in Trenton states that CARP is established on 80 campuses across the country. The stated goals are "to inspire spiritual renewal, a new moral commitment and positive solutions to global injustice among the student community. Its means are education, ecumenism and service to others."

The Unification Church has operated a "house church" in Trenton since 1984. Eight members live in a house on West State Street where they hold weekly dinner meetings with guests interested in the church. The church held rallies and meetings in and around Trenton, particularly during the time the Rev. Mr. Moon was serving an 18-month prison term for conviction on a tax evasion charge.

In February, the Unification Church started a CARP group at Rutgers. One of the speakers at a dinner in March featuring the national director of CARP was the Rev. Ernest Gordon, former dean of the Princeton University Chapel. Dean Gordon is now president of an organization called Christian Rescue Effort for the Emancipation of Dissidents (CREED), which he founded when he retired to Washington, D.C. and then brought to Princeton when he moved back here.

Dean Gordon says he has acted as an unpaid consultant to the Unification Church, attempting to steer it toward historic Christianity. He now says he no longer wants to be associated with the group and will drop his consultant role. "They're heretical," he says.

Date Is Announced For Unitarian Auction

More than 20 agencies and charitable organizations in the greater Princeton area have been chosen by the trustees of the Unitarian Church to share in the $10,000 proceeds from last year's Unitarian auction.

This year's event, to be called "Auction - Plus," will be held Saturday, May 5 at the church. Each year, proceeds from the annual auction go to social service organizations, rather than to the church itself.

The "plus" in the name refers to the many-faceted design of the fund-raiser.

Organizations that will receive money from the previous auction include Amnesty International, the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament, the Council of Community Services, Crawford house (the half-way house for recovering alcoholic women), Creative Theatre, the Crisis Ministry of Princeton and Trenton, Family Service (Princeton area), Family Service (Trenton/Hopewell Valley),

Also the chaplaincy of the Princeton Medical Center including Merwick and Princeton House, the Hub (for mentally and pysically handicapped persons who need special kinds of socializing), Hyacinth (offering support for those with AIDS), Interim Homes of the Princeton YWCA.

Also, Isles (urban gardening and housing advocacy in Trenton), Lifeline emergency shelter for women and children, the Red Cross Meals on Wheels program, Mount Carmel Guild for home-bound elderly, the Nuclear Dialogue Project, Planned Parenthood, Mercer area.

Also, Princeton Community Housing, Princeton/Granada (Nicaragua) Sister Cities project, Trenton Area Soup Kitchen, Trenton YWCA, and Youth Environmental Society.

Palm Sunday Services Set by Area Churches

Area churches have scheduled special services for Palm Sunday to mark the entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem and the beginning of Holy Week leading up to Maundy Thursday, Good Friday and Easter.

QUILT SYMBOLS EXPLAINED: Anita Schorsch of the Center for Theological Inquiry will give a lecture Sunday entitled "Undercover: Sewing and Symbolism" at the Philadelphia Antiques Show, April 7 to 11, in connection with a quilt exhibit. The lecture will explain religious symbols used by Pennsylvania Germans from Amish to Lutherans in their quilts of the 19th century. With her is the Rev. John Goerss, pastor of the Lutheran Messiah Church and a member of the loan exhibit committee.

Many services will include the blessing and distribution of palms and some will also feature the reading of the Passion, the narrative of Jesus' last days on earth.

Trinity Church, will observe Palm Sunday with a Liturgy of the Palms and Holy Eucharist at 7:30, 9:10 and 11:20 Sunday morning. Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:15 a.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of Holy Week. There will be the regular 12:10 p.m. Holy Eucharist followed by a simple lunch on Monday. On Tuesday, the Way of the Cross will be observed at 8 p.m., and on Wednesday, April 11, there will be the regular service of Holy Eucharist with anointing.

At Princeton United Methodist Church, Ian Coats, a Ph.D. candidate at Princeton Seminary, will speak on "Tom's Twin Tableau" at the 9 a.m. chapel service. Dr. James H. Harris Jr., senior pastor, will speak on "What a Parade!" at the 11 a.m. service, and the children's choir and the adult choir will sing. Adult education, confirmation and college student classes meet at 10, and church school for children and youth through grade nine convenes at 11.

For information call 924-2613.

At The First Presbyterian Church of Plainsboro, the 11 a.m. worship service will feature the children of the church, who will sing and parade with palms. The sermon, by the Rev. Jeff Wildrick, is entitled "A Day of Choices."

At 5:30 on Palm Sunday, members of the Session and Mr. Wildrick will lead a special learning event on the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper for children and their parents, called "Come to the Table." For information call 799-0855.

There will be a presentation of Scripture, spoken and sung, at Princeton Presbyterian Church Sunday at 4:30. Admission is free, and an offering will be taken for Bibles for India. The program will feature the songs of Scott McClain, a recent graduate of Westminster Choir College and composer and choir director at Princeton Presbyterian.

The church is located at 545 Meadow Road, off Route 1. For more information call 987-1166.

Sunday church school and worship service begins at 10 at Kingston United Methodist Church. The sermon on Palm Sunday will be "Your Will, Not Mine." For information call 921-6812.

The Women's Association of the Witherspoon Presbyterian Church will hold an Old Fashioned Palm Sunday Tea on Sunday from 3:30 to 5:30 in the Parish Hall, Quarry & Witherspoon streets.

The program will begin at 4. For information call 921-8429. The donation is $6. Anne D. Thomas is president of the Women's Association, the Rev. Adrian McFarlane is pastor of the church.

Palm Sunday worship at the Hopewell Presbyterian Church begins with a congregation-wide processional with palms at 9:30.

The adult choir will present Rutter's Requiem directed by Patricia A Guth during the service. A chamber orchestra will accompany the choir.

A fellowship time begins at 10:30 followed by Sunday School for pre-school through high school. Adult education is offered at 11 a.m. A class led by

Hopewell-Woodsville Road
New Listing

High on the hill just west of the village of Hopewell, this cottage on its own 8 acres sloping down to Stony Brook enjoys a panoramic view of the beautiful valley. Sheltered by huge evergreens and hedges, it offers a pleasant retreat from the busy world. The entry opens to a charming 30 ft. living-dining room with stone fireplace and a delightful greenhouse. A wall of windows brings in the southern sun and wintertime solar heat and opens to a large deck with the view. An adjoining family room/bedroom with bath shares these special features. The kitchen is efficient, with an adjoining laundry room. An addition with windowed hall provides three bedrooms and two baths. All for a new owner who would like to keep horses or is just a lover of land. $270,000

THE PRESERVE

A prestigious and private wooded enclave in Western Princeton just off The Great Road. We are proud to offer a most distinguished new mansion which we believe has no peer in the present Princeton market. A stunning 47' entrance gallery with black and white marble floor, paired curving staircases, large balcony above and providing access to step-down 2-story living room. There is a large panelled library with fireplace; a master suite with step-down bedroom with fireplace, his and her baths/dressing w/Jacuzzi, sauna and steam shower; an amazing cathedral kitchen with dual islands, acres of counter space and glass-front cabinets; and an adjoining beamed cathedral ceiling family room w/fireplace. Upstairs five more bedrooms, each with their own bath plus huge attic. 8,000 sq. ft. in total. Outside there is a 100' walled bluestone veranda and latticed pergola deck, maid's quarters w/separate entrance, professional landscaping and huge specimen trees sited on 4.5 acres, 2.9 of which is a separate improved lot which can be held for protection and investment. ON THE PRINCETON RIDGE
Public Open House Sunday, April 8, 1-4 P.M.

CUSTOM BUILT, SUPERBLY DESIGNED, AND PRIVATE AS CAN BE, tucked in the woods on the Princeton Ridge on its own two acres, a unique contemporary with a flair. Enter through a glass enclosed skylighted foyer with huge stone wall to a spacious living room with a massive stone fireplace, overlooking the whole woods. To the right is a spacious dining room overlooking the deck with enclosed wet bar and easy access to the unique eat-in kitchen with long breakfast countertop, pantry, and lots of storage cabinets. To the left a study with double built-in desks and bookshelves, a powder room, and master bedroom with mirrored closets and master bath. Downstairs is a full spacious family room with fireplace and sliding glass doors to a patio in the woods, plus three more bedrooms with full bath and laundry. A very versatile home with good separation of functions, privacy, uniqueness, and a taste of what all Princeton loves, the woods. $529,000

DIRECTIONS: The Great Road north two miles to Ridgeview on right — to second from end at Cherry Hill Rd.

New Listing

This quaint street in midtown Princeton is a picture postcard of days gone by. Surprisingly, there is now a new duplex there — restricted by the Historical Society to preserve the ambiance of the street. A parlor with bay windows open to the large living room with brick fireplace, charming dining room and delightful modern kitchen. On second floor — a family room, study, bedroom and tiled bath. On third — a master bedroom with luxurious bath. Parking. $379,000
